STAND AND DELIVER!----CURLEY'S THREAT TO BOSTON BANKS

The city of Boston has on deposit in forty-five Boston banks and trust companies, $7,238,934.56. Of this number, seventeen out of forty-five have contributed to the Mayor's so-called "Boost Boston" Fund. Over the other twenty-eight institutions hangs the "club" embodied in these words of Mayor Curley:

"I can conceive of no logical argument why the funds of the city should be deposited in any institution whose officers are so devoid of public spirit as is indicated by the president (Mr. Allan Forbes) of the State Street Trust."

MR. CURLEY MIGHT AS WELL SAY: "STAND AND DELIVER!"

Death and intense suffering resulted in Boston and New England today from the cold wave.

A slight rise in temperature brought hope of relief, but a blizzard that is sweeping on from the West is forecasted to strike New York, and possibly New England.

Charity organizations of all kinds in Boston were driven to their utmost to succor those suffering from hunger and sickness, whose sufferings were intensified by the cold.

Patrick McKenna, sixty-two years old, of Cambridge street, died early today from the cold. After wandering through the night he stumbled to the doorway of a friend, Patrick J. Mullen, at No. 9 Auburn street, West End, at 6 a. m. When Mullen let him in McManus staggered toward the stove, collapsed and died.

FATALLY HURT.

Wilmot H. Harris of No. 85 Perkins street, Somerville, fell from the top of a freight car in the Mystic yards and received a fracture of the skull and other injuries, which are thought fatal. He had been working as brakeman all night. The cold stiffened his legs, causing him to trip on the edge of the car.

Dispatches from Fall River say that Napoleon Guimond of No. 102 East Main street was found on Plymouth avenue with arms and legs frozen. He is not expected to survive.

Albert McLaughlin, thirty-two, died while driving at Oaksfield, Me.

James M. Palmer, thirty-nine, dropped dead in his store at Lewiston, Me., from cold.

"Buster" Brown, Former Boston Pitcher, Dead

Charles E. Brown, better known as "Buster," for five years a Boston National League pitcher, is dead.

Bill Sweeney, captain of the Braves, received the announcement of the sudden death of the well-known pitcher in a letter today from the Rev. Allen Stockdale, a former Boston clergyman, now located at Toledo, O. He was a close friend of "Buster" Brown.

The clergyman said that he had just received a telegram from Brown's family in Onawa, Iowa, his home, saying that "Buster" had passed away suddenly and asking him to go to Iowa to perform the funeral ceremony. Because of ill health, Mr. Stockdale was unable to go.

"Buster" Brown was one of the best known of the Boston National pitchers until he was released to Toronto of the International League last July. He was about twenty-eight years old, married and had a son, born last August. "Buster" joined the Boston Nationals in 1909. He was a quiet, much-liked, young fellow and a good right-handed pitcher.

Hunts for Miss Arlin

MRS. ARLIN IS HEART BROKEN

Mrs. Jane Arlin, mother of Eleanor Arlin, the missing Brookline girl, who came all the way from Colebrook, N. H., to meet William E. English when the latter averred he knew where the girl was, was heart-broken today at English's admission that he had only second-hand evidence on which he "believed" he could locate Miss Arlin.

She gave up all plan of meeting Mr. English. English, who is secretary of the Massachusetts Hospital Reform Association, has been discredited by some of the Arlin family and believed by others.

He has told somewhat conflicting stories of his alleged knowledge of the Arlin girl's whereabouts, and today announced that he was leaving town and might go as far as New York, investigating the case.

HAS BEEN IN ASYLUM.

English was adjudged insane and sent to the Westboro State Hospital for the Insane September 30, 1910. After remaining in the institution for observation and treatment up to October 31, 1911, he was allowed his freedom on furlough. He remained on furlough until January 26, 1912, when it was found necessary to return him to the hospital. Early in December, 1913, English escaped from the hospital, but on December 19 gave himself up, and the following day was again allowed his freedom on furlough. This furlough has lasted up to the present time. During his stay in the institution he was given many liberties that the more seriously insane patients were not allowed.

The first complaint was received from Henry G. Holloran of Brighton. On this English was taken before the Brighton District Court. This was on September 20, 1910. He was examined by Drs. Henry S. Rowen of Brighton and Joseph Stanton of Newton. Both physicians declared him insane, suffering from delusions.

At the Westboro Hospital it was said by one of the executive officers that English had been a model patient, that he suffered from delusions, but had never been regarded as violent. He said: "I wouldn't place much confidence in any story he might tell. He is out on furlough from here, and that's enough."

HAD DELUSIONS.

Dr. Rowen in speaking of English said:

"Dr. Stanton and myself examined English in 1910 and found him suffering from delusions. We adjudged him insane and he was sent to the Westboro Hospital. From his statements in the Arlin case I should say he was still a little wrong in his head. I would not put much stock in any tales he might tell."

The Massachusetts Hospital Reform Association is an organization made up of the relatives and friends of persons confined in insane hospitals in this State. The prime mover and secretary of the association is English.

BONDS OF STATE ARE HALF SOLD

Judge Thomas P. Riley of Malden, former chairman of the Democratic State Committee, was at the head of the line when the first "over-the-counter" sale of State bonds to be held in this country, began today at the office of State Treasurer Mansfield on Beacon Hill. Judge Riley bought—or filed his application and deposit to buy—a $100 bond.

The first feminine buyer was Miss Gladys Heintz of Roxbury. She is employed in one of the State Departments and applied for a $100 bond.

"I wanted to be the first gril to buy one of the State bonds," said Miss Heintz.

Judge Riley is to put up his bond for a high school debating prize. He will give it to the team winning an interschool debate next June between Malden, Everett, Winthrop, Somerville, Chelsea and Everett High Schools. Governor Walsh and Lieutenant-Governor Barry are to judge the result, which will be announced just before graduation.

There were several persons on hand when the State Treasurer's office was opened. Time was required to get everything ready for applications. The time was just 10:40 when Judge Riley's application and a five-dollar bill he handed over for deposit, were taken by Treasurer Mansfield.

Then the applications went merrily on.

Treasurer Mansfield has $6,200,000 worth of bonds to sell for the Bay State and has received applications for $3,000,000 so far, or practically half the entire issue.

The State Treasurer thinks that selling bonds over the counter makes good citizens. He said:

"To sell bonds to the people induces civic pride. It makes people feel that they have direct relations to the State government. If you put a $100 bond in each anarchist's hand, it would convert them all."

Up to noon applications had been received for exactly $3,150,000 worth of bonds, or just one-half the total issue. The applications came by telegram, letter and in person.

Those applying in person were received either by Treasurer Mansfield himself or Deputy Treasurer Bridge.

One woman, over seventy years old, applied for $800 worth of bonds. Her daughter wanted $300 worth.

A man, who said he was over eighty, subscribed for $200 worth. He applied in the name of his grandchild, and he desired bonds that mature in twenty years, when the grandchild will be of age.

Treasurer Mansfield said he wished to thank the AMERICAN heartily for helping the bond sale by giving it publicity beforehand.

Wilson Better, but Cancels Meetings

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—President Wilson's cold was little better today and all his engagements, including the Cabinet meeting, were cancelled. His advisers have ordered the President to rest throughout the day. Both President and Mrs. Wilson, however, have decided that the reception to the New Jerseyites must take place tonight and it is believed that the President is husbanding his strength for this event.

MISS PAULINE HOWARD, whose detective work caused the arrest of the man accused of robbing her father.

Miss Pauline Howard of No. 4 Decatur street, South End—a young lady of twenty—is open for offers as a heroine for a good detective story. By quick-witted work, she secured the arrest of Daniel Coleman, a young man who had been living with her family, and who, it is charged, took $150 from her father's desk and started for New York.

He was arrested at Providence, with $147 in his pockets, according to the police. Miss Howard thus told the story of her feat:

"Coleman had come home with my brother, and we were glad to have him. Father was saving money to pay a second mortgage on the house, and Coleman saw him put $150 in a desk.

"I got home at 4 o'clock, and found the money and Mr. Coleman gone. He had told us he had lived in Providence and New York, so I started right off for the South station, and finally found a ticket-seller who recognized the description I gave and said the man had gone to Providence.

"My father was with me, and I immediately put him on the next train for Providence, and told him to go to the steamers leaving for New York, and I told him I would get in touch with the Providence police in the meantime."

At the Dedham-street police station she telephoned to the Providence police and also had Boston Police Headquarters telephone.

Huerta Agent Will Seek New York Loan

CHERBOURG, France, Feb. 13.—Adolfo de la Lama, former minister of finance for Mexico, who has been in Europe on a mission for President Huerta, sailed for New York today. Senor de la Lama is supposed to have come here seeking a loan for the Mexican government.

BANKER ROGERSON WOULD HELP, BUT BALKS AT SANDBAG

Mayor James M. Curley's attempt to force Boston banks and business houses to contribute to his "Boost Boston" fund was bitterly denounced today by bankers, business men and the newspapers. The unanimous opinion was that the Mayor had made a serious error in attempting to apply his Tammany Club methods of ward politics to city administration.

CALLED A "HOLDUP."

The Mayor's amazing action in entering upon his list of subscribers to the "boosting" fund the names of men and of newspapers which had not authorized him to do so, was variously characterized as a "shake-down," a "sand-bagging," a "hold up" and "coercion."

The twenty-eight Boston banks which have on deposit city money and which have not yet contributed to the Mayor's fund, denounced any attempt to force them to contribute. Charles E. Rogerson, president of the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Company, which has about $320,000 of city money, declared:

I WOULD GIVE A MILLION DOLLARS WHERE I THOUGHT IT WAS NEEDED, BUT I WOULDN'T GIVE A CENT UNDER COERCION.

Through the letter made public by President Forbes of the State Street Trust Company, the Mayor of Boston was exposed in unenviable light. It was found that at least $4000 of his "Boost Boston" fund was the product of his own imagination; that the subscriptions were entered without authorization.

Mr. Forbes was the first to protest against the Mayor's action as authorized. He drew down upon his head brisk vengeance. Said the Mayor:

"If the city has any funds in your bank, I will instruct the treasurer to withdraw them."

Mr. Forbes did not turn pale at this threat. He refused to be bullied, and made public the facts. The State Street Trust had at last reports $140,000 of the city's money on deposit.

The next to protest against Mr. Cur

VERA CRUZ, Feb. 13.—The German cruiser Dresden arrived today from Tampico. It reported all quiet at Tampico.

NANCE GWYN SAYS NO. 5 MUST BE AMERICAN

Nance says so, and as she has had four, she ought to know.

He must also have an income of 50.000 a year, must be a brunette, must have no morning grouch, must love children and—last but not least—must love Nance.

Miss Gwyn is the girl who achieved fame on the stage by her "Dance of the Dawn." Off the stage she has achieved fame by four marriages. Two of her husbands are dead, one divorced and one is to be divorced, if Nance has her way.

She has three more husbands in sight, according to a Hindood soothsayer, who read her palm when she was on her first honeymoon. So, really, Nance is not to blame if the business of being a wife to so many men has occupied so much of her time.

JUST A GIRL THEN.

David Stuart was her first. Says Nance:

"You see, I married him when I was the merest infant, a whole month before my sixteenth birthday. He was engaged to three of his chums before I married him. Just boy and girl affairs, of course. Then my grandfather died and left me £10,000, to be given to me on my wedding day. I was awfully keen to travel, and it was just up to me to get married and get that money. The will didn't say anything about my age."

David died and so did Eric Trafordwyr, his chum, who was Nance's No. 2.

THOUGHT OF THE PROPHET.

"I thought of that dreadful old prophet's remarks after Eric's death," said Nance, "and I just made up my mind I wouldn't ever marry anybody any more. I seemed to be a hoodoo on husbands. But on the way out to Australia I met Thomas Caffrey, an Irishman, and such a dear! I said, half in joke, 'If I ever marry anybody I'll marry you!' For two years he followed me over the world on the strength of that idle remark, and finally he caught up with me here in New York. I simply had to reward such perseverance."

Caffrey was divorced and then came Charles Romer Williams, who must answer to Nance's suit for divorce if he would make a poor prophet of the soothsayer.

"There's such a perfectly delightful old man of seventy-five who says I can have him any time I want him," said Nance in conclusion. "And if I were free I wouldn't wander a bit if I married him. But, anyway, the next person will be an American."

BURGLARS OFF IN AUTO BEFORE RAIN OF SHOTS

ATTLEBORO, Feb. 13.—Three yeggmen were caught in the act of attempting to rob the postoffice at Norton, early today. A railroad watchman surprised them trying to lift the small postoffice safe out of the window onto a railroad truck.

He fired three shots at them. The men ran, jumped into a waiting automobile, and disappeared in the direction of Boston.

A general alarm was sent to Attleboro, Mansfield, Taunton and other surrounding cities and towns, but at noon today no trace of the men had been found.

John S. Woods, postmaster, heard the shots and sprang out of bed in his room over the postoffice, in time to see the automobile disappear.

The robbers had wheeled the safe across the floor to a window they had opened, and were trying to get it through this window onto the truck, presumably so they might transport it to the automobile and carry it away to open at their leisure.

Fire Causes $10,000 Loss at Nashua, N. H.

NASHUA, N. H., Feb. 13.—Fire swept the dryhouse of the White Mountain Freezer Company in Hollis street early today and for a time threatened to destroy all the buildings, stock and machinery, valued at about $250,000. The flames were spread by the high wind, but after a two-hour fight in a temperature of 20 below, the firemen had them under control. The loss was estimated at $10,000.

Tonsils Cut, Girl Bleeds to Death

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Ruth E. Johnston, seven years old, of No. 22 Lindsley avenue, Newark, bled to death after an operation to remove adenoids and tonsils. Dr. William O. Bailey, a throat and nose specialist, who was called in by Dr. Ernest Tutschult, said the girl was one of the small number of persons whose blood does not coagulate.

'HONESTY IN OFFICE'

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Feb. 13.—Al J. Jennings, the former bandit, candidate for Governor of Oklahoma, has given out his platform. It contains only sixty-five words:

"My platform," said Jennings, "is fidelity to the people, real honesty in office and that the law shall be no respecter of persons. When these principles are truly and honestly carried into effect, all interests will be subserved and taxes will be reduced. In all my life I never have betrayed confidence. If the people confide in me, God being my judge, I'll not betray them."

'More Lincolns Are Needed,' Says Walsh

What we most need today is men of Lincoln's stamp, truly free men, who recognize and emphasize, not party designations but principles, wherever they originate of by whomsoever advocated, for the advancement of all of the people," declared Governor Walsh, at the joint Lincoln Day banquet of the Progressive Party Clubs at the Lenox.

Eight Perish as Steamship Sinks

LONDON, Feb. 13.—Eight men were lost today by the sinking of the freight steamship My Own, which went down in the channel of Shoreham. Life-savers hurrying to the foundering vessel found the captain clinging to the rigging and took him off. They could find no trace of the rest of the crew.

Lawyer and Family Flee Brookline Fire

Walter L. Came, a Boston lawyer, his wife and two children and a maid were driven into the street when an overheated furnace started a fire which caused a loss of $1,000 in their home at No. 11 Williams street, Brookline, early today. They were cared for in the home of Arthur G. Whitney, next door.

SCORES SEE TRAIN KILL MAN AT MELROSE

Sarkis G. Shaghalian, forty, a well-to-do candy manufacturer with a place of business at No. 130 Commercial street, Boston, was instantly killed today by an inbound train just north of Melrose Highlands station.

His body was hurled several feet in the air and landed on the tracks in front of the express and was decapitated.

The accident was witnessed by scores of persons who were waiting at the station for an accommodation train. Shaghalian was on his way to the station to catch the latter train. He took a short cut over the railroad tracks from his home on Nowell road.

Two weeks ago Shaghalian married a young woman by the name of Perry, who was engaged in local work in Boston and who lived in Newfoundland. He bought a home for himself and bride on Nowell road.

When the Public Service Commission met today to resume its investigation of the New Haven's "Underground Fund," letters were sent by Chairman Frederick J. MacLeod to former Vice-President Timothy E. Byrnes of the New Haven and to Charles S. Mellen, urging them to appear and testify. The commission wrote Mr. Byrnes they would, if he wished, hold open the investigation till they had heard him, and to Mr. Mellen the commission wrote:

"So far as we know, there is nothing in any of the transactions under investigation which has any bearing upon the responsibility of any official of the road for any accident upon its lines, or with any matter related to the Grand Trunk Railway. If you should appear to testify before the commission, we shall see that you are protected from any line of questioning which might in any way trench upon these matters."

EVELYN BLAMES MRS. THAW FOR CHURCH ATTACK

NORFOLK, Feb. 13.—"It is all a conspiracy, of which I believe Mrs William Thaw to be the instigator, to prevent me from making a living for myself and boy, and to drag me down to the gutter. But it will never succeed, for I am earning my living honestly in the only way I know how, and not depending upon notoriety to attain success."

In her dressing room at the Wells Theatre Evelyn Nesbit Thaw wept as she talked of the efforts made in Norfolk and Richmond to prevent her appearance on the stage. She was arrested on complaint of ministers, but was acquitted. "I have read the Bible," she said, "and I do not hesitate to say that these ministers are certainly not living up to the teachings of the Master when they attempt to prevent me from making my way.

"My life has been an open book. Everything I have said or done has been given to the public through the newspapers. I wonder if the members of the Ministerial Union would be willing to undergo such an experience. I wonder if thy could stand the glare of the white light of publicity and come out as clean as I have

"I wonder if the ministers, should they succeed in preventing me from making my living on the stage, would offer me any other kind of employment."

To Help Men to Help Themselves

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—A new plan to help the unemployed of Chicago to help themselves was being worked out today by a new organisation of business men—the Brotherhood Association of America. The motto of the new organization is "Nothing for Nothing," and every person who is aided must work. A large wholesale warehouse will be rented by the association and supplies will be stored there for distribution. A trained business man will direct the distribution of food, clothing and fuel to the needy. Work will be given the unemployed men.

Governor Sued for Confiscating Liquor

SALEM, Ore., Feb. 13.—Governor Oswald West and Colonel B. K. Lawson of the Oregon militia have been served with papers in damage suits filed against them by H. Stewart, Anton Warner and William Wiegand, Copperfield saloon keepers. They allege that Governor West and Colonel Lawson, while Copperfield recently was under martial law, confiscated their stock of liquor. They ask damages aggregating $8,000.

Stanwood of Brookline was elected chairman. The other officers chosen being Mrs. Josephine Peabody Marks and Percy MacKaye, honorary vice-chairman; Miss A. G. Smith, secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. Nevett, chairman of the membership committee.

Among those who have joined the league are Mrs. George H. Flebbe (Beulah Marie Dix), Miss Eugenia Frothingham, Rev. Dr. Samuel McComb, Mrs. Rebecca Hooper Eastman, Miss Abbie Farwell Brown, Miss Agnes Crimmins, Mrs. Inez Haynes Gillmore, Miss Margaret Munsterberg and Miss Charlotte Porter.

11 Flee Fire Into Cold in Scant Attire

Two families, including seven children and two women, were rescued in their night clothes with the thermometer standing below zero, at a fire discovered shortly after 1 o'clock this morning in the two-family 2½-story wooden tenement house at No. 71 Davison street, Hyde Park. Mr. and Mrs. Morris Wolfe and four children lived on the second floor and William Forsythe and his wife and three children were on the third floor sleeping when the flames were discovered. The damage was about $2,000.

Tries to Flirt with Kaiser's Daughter

BERLIN, Feb. 13.—A sentry posted in a lonely part of Brunswick Palace grounds saw a charming girl approaching. He tried to attract her attention to beguile his boredom. She ignored him and passed into the palace.

A few minutes later the Duke of Brunswick appeared and severely lectured the sentry. He said:

"I will overlook it this time, as it was only my wife, but I would not if it had been any other than Lady Brunswick." The sentry had been trying to flirt with the Kaiser's daughter.

Dartmouth Players Wear Imported Gowns

HANOVER, N. H., Feb. 13.—Dartmouth College students wore costly imported gowns when they presented "The Misleading Lady" in Webster Hall. Donald Richmond, '17, of Brockton, Mass., playing the leading role of Helen Steele, wore, in the course of the play, five gowns imported from Paris through New York managers and each worth more than $400.

4 Killed in Jersey Powder Explosion

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Feb. 13.—Four men were killed in an explosion which destroyed the packing house of the Hercules powder works, part of the Dupont plant at Kenvil, N. J., early today. The plant had been running day and night ever since the embargo on the shipment of arms and ammunition into Mexico was lifted. The victims were laborers. The explosion was heard four miles.

COX, G.O.P. HEAD, FAVORS WALSH'S STATE PROJECTS

The speech of Channing H. Cox before the Lincoln Club of Boston is today the talk of political Greater Boston.

He came out last night, notwithstanding, in favor of:

A Constitutional Convention, as recommended by Governor Walsh.

The Initiative and Referendum, also recommended by the Governor and a tenet of the Democratic faith.

Submitting "Votes for Women" to a vote of the men of Massachusetts without further delay.

A constitutional amendment to permit a readjustment of the tax laws, in order that $4,500,000,000 of intangible property may no longer escape taxation.

Biennial elections, as recommended by the Governor.

The short ballot.

Mr. Cox parts with the Democratic Governor of Massachusetts only on the question of abolishing party enrollment for primary elections. He is also firm and strong in his opposition to the election and the recall of judges.

Favoring the short ballot, Representative Cox treated himself to a healthy Republican swing at the political jugular of State Treasurer Fred Mansfield, whose management of his new office up to date indicates to Republicans that he is not unfriendly to the old rule that "to the victors belong the spoils."

Wherever men in politics met today they discussed the speech of Channing Cox, who said:

"The Republican party in Massachusetts ought to stand for a Constitutional Convention.

"The recent exposure of the reckless and improper use of money by the New Haven Railroad for the evident purpose of influencing legislation has sickened honest legislators, and, I fear, has shaken the confidence of the people in the Legislature. The surest way of restoring the necessary confidence in representative bodies is by giving to the people the right to initiate legislation themselves and to veto legislation enacted.

"Equal suffrage is not a question of party politics. Great groups of the people in Massachusetts are, as they have been for years, in bitter division upon this question. The bloodless warfare over equal suffrage should cease, but it will not until the people vote upon a constitutional amendment providing for it."

Workers Fight for Ice Cutting Jobs

GARY, Ind., Feb. 13.—Fully 5,000 men were at work today cutting ice on the small lakes in northern Indiana. Calls for workmen brought such ready responses that owners of the ice cutting privileges were unable to employ all of them. At Wolf Lake and Cedar Lake men fought for tools, and at small lakes near here the men broke into the tool house before the boss arrived and went to work.

Old-Time Cold Cure--Drink Tea

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Thee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels thus breaking a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.

The Chaperon's Chatter

By THE DOWAGER.

Miss Mary Shreve Ames entertained at a small dance at her town house, Commonwealth avenue and Dartmouth street, in honor of her two nieces, the Misses Olivia and Elsie Ames, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Ames, 2d, recent debutantes. The guests included the younger set almost exclusively.

• • •

Mrs. James Newton gave a dance in her home on Heath street, Chestnut Hill, for her debutante daughter, Rosamond. Mrs. Newton wore black brocaded satin with a white lace bodice and carried pink roses. Miss Newton was in white satin with tulle overdress, trimmed with tiny red roses. Among the debutantes present were Hope Bancroft, Natalie Thayer, Martha Thorndike, Harriet Dexter, Elizabeth Bennett, Harriet Mayley, Josephine Rantoul, Christine Converse, Louise Converse and Dorothy Whipple.

• • •

Miss Edith Storer was at home informally at No. 222 Beacon street, when Miss Cooley of the Pennsylvania School for Colored Children and People spoke of the work there.

• • •

Marie Elizabeth Selinger, niece of the late Jean Paul Selinger, and Charles J. Warren, Harvard '08, a real estate broker of Dorchester, are soon to wed. They will make their home with Mr. Warren's father at No. 66 Brent street, Dorchester. On account of recent deaths in the family the wedding will be quiet.

• • •

Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird is to open "Endean," at East Walpole, tonight for a Valentine dance by a number of young people connected with church work in that town.

No Tango at Police Ball.

The Waltham Police Relief Association held its third annual dance at Maynard Hall, Waltham last night—but the tango was barred, and the officials, headed by President Horace E. Eastman, enforced the order rigorously.

ARMOR OF ICE CAUSES LIST ON PLANT LINER

The Plant liner A. W. Perry came in today from Halifax, twenty-four hours late, and with one of the finest cargoes of ice ever seen in Boston.

A northwest gale had plastered the whole port side of the ship with icicles and cakes and armor of ice; and as a result she had a heavy list to port.

Captain Ellis was on the bridge for forty consecutive hours of the fifty-four-hour trip. The whole crew was exhausted when they made port today. There were thirteen passengers—nine of them fishermen. Eight of the fishermen were the crew of the Boston fishing schooner George Campbell, wrecked in Nova Scotian waters. The other was from the Gloucester fishing schooner Atlantic, sent home by the Halifax consul.

More Marriages as the Girls Propose

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—That Chicago women are doing their own proposing, is the reason to which John H. Mack, of the marriage license bureau, ascribes an increase in marriages.

"Times have not been good, but marriages for the last six months have increased 15 per cent over a year ago," he said today. "I tell you, the girls are proposing. My wife as much as proposed to me. She showed me she wanted me, and what I said was: 'Well, when shall we get married?'"

O'Connor to Answer Cambridge Critics

Former Alderman Michael M. O'Connor of Cambridge, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Mayor of that city, will tonight hold a big rally in Murphy's barn, Starks street, at which he will submit his platform and incidentally answer the criticism of his opponents. O'Conner will also speak in Wheyet square.

Nemo CORSETS THE ACTUAL FACTS REGARDING ELASTIC FABRICS

These Facts, Madam, Are of Vital Importance

PLEASE READ THEM CAREFULLY—AND REMEMBER—

1. It is impossible to make a comfortable long corset of the present mode without using some elastic fabric to make it flexible and easy.
2. The life of a corset is just as long—or short—as the life of its elastic part.
3. The ONLY elastic fabrics ever made that can be guaranteed to give satisfactory wear are Lastikops Webbing and Lastikops Cloth, both Nemo inventions and used exclusively by us.
4. The elastic gores and bands used in other corsets (in imitation of the Nemo) are just the same old unreliable elastics—wear out in no time.
5. The dealer or saleswoman who tells you that other elastic fabrics are "the same" or "as good" as the Nemo is either ignorant of the facts or is wilfully trying to deceive you.

TWO FINE EXAMPLES

No. 512—Superb for medium and slender figures. Triple elastic reduction—and expansion. Style and comfort for the slender and medium $5.00

No. 327—The great new Duplex Self-Reducing, for full figures. Extremely long, supremely comfortable; low bust; (No. 328, medium bust) $3.00

BE A WISE WOMAN! Look into this elastic business. See that every piece bears the trademark "LASTIKOPS." Refuse all imitations, and thus preserve your figure and guard your purse. [E-17] Nemo Hygienic-Fashion Institute, N. Y.

RECOGNITION OF HUERTA WILL BE CARDEN PLEA

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 13.—Sir Lionel Carden, British Minister to Mexico, will urge upon President Wilson the recognition of President Huerta as the quickest and best solution of the Mexican problem when he goes to Washington next month.

Sir Lionel today refused to outline his plans, but from a reliable source it was learned that he will advance every possible argument for the recognition of Huerta by Washington.

It is reported that the British diplomat will represent himself as speaking not alone for himself, but unofficially for the French, Spanish, German and Belgian envoys in Mexico. Carden will rest part of his argument upon the contention that the European Diplomatic Corps in Mexico City stands as a unit in favor of the recognition of Huerta by the United States.

Investigation is being made of reports that several Americans were killed when a train on the National Railways line was dynamited by rebels between San Luis Potosi and Tampico yesterday. More than seventy-five persons in all are reported to have been killed.

Reports were circulated in banking circles here today that leading Japanese financial institutions will lend the Mexican government $75,000,000. It is said that arrangements for the loan were made during the recent visit of de la Barra to Tokio.

RHEUMABATH

Stops Aches and Pains Forces the Poison Out

One of the greatest chemists in the United States has produced a white, crystalline substance called Rheumabath. When used in the hot bath it stops the aches, pains and twinges of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago and Grippe like magic.

This remarkable preparation contains the medical ingredients of famous Mineral Springs. It seems to have the same beneficial effects as a trip to Hot Springs.

"This Beats a Trip to Hot Springs!"

The explanation of the chemist is that Rheumabath causes the uric acid and poisonous matter to ooze out through the sweat glands.

These 2,000,000 little "sewers" discharge an almost unbelievable quantity of poisons and toxins.

The relief is simply wonderful. Hundreds of sufferers from Rheumatism and kindred ailments have found relief in Rheumabath. Many noted ball players and actors use Rheumabath to keep in the pink of condition.

On receipt of 25 cents The Rheumabath Company, Dept. 46, Minneapolis, Minn. will mail you a full-size package of Rheumabath, with simple directions for use, if not obtainable at your druggist. Valuable book on Rheumabath free. Sold by all Riker-Jaynes and other leading drug stores. (2)

MANY DOCTORS ADMIT PRAYERS CURED CRIPPLE

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Medical men, clergymen and scientists discussed yesterday with absorbed interest the remarkable faith cure of crippled Helen Scott.

Most of them agreed that when the little Jamaica girl slipped from her bed and shook off the malady that had rendered her a helpless cripple for two years she was under the influence of suggestional force.

A "touch of explosive intensity" (as Professor James phrased it) "induced by the sublime faith of her mother caused her to shake off the paralytic thralldom and brought her again into vigorous health."

While medical men held that only functional cases present themselves as possible objects of a faith or suggestion cure, the Christian Scientists were emphatic in their statement that organic diseases can be cured as well.

INFLUENCE OF DREAMS.

That the psychology of dreams had a great deal to do with the girl's recovery was the opinion of the Rev. Dr. L. W. Batten, for more than ten years rector of the historic St. Mark's Church and the first clergyman to establish in this city a healing mission on the lines of the Emmanuel Movement. He said, in his study, No. 3 Chelsea square:

> The case illustrates the wonderful power of suggestion. The child was probably under a mental inhibition that told her she could not walk. The night of the cure when she was sleeping and the subconscious element strongest, a dream (induced by suggestion) removed the inhibition, and she walked.

Dr. John D. Quackenbos said:

> Prayer is a great stimulant, both physical and spiritual. If a person kneels to God it is almost equivalent to a cure. But I have patients who are paralyzed and whom no amount of faith will cure. I have no right to say God would not interfere, but it would be a miracle.

"HYSTERICAL PARALYSIS."

> There are two classifications of paralysis—functional and organic. This girl probably suffered from hysterical paralysis, which is a kind of functional paralysis. In other words, there was no structural disease in her case, but only an inability for the brain to send its message to the various muscles.
>
> This girl was asleep when the cure occurred. We know that the normal restraining machanism of the nervous system is largely in abeyance during slumber. Thus the child was in a condition analagous to the hypnotic state. It is probable the powerful suggestion made to her mind by her mother and the atmosphere of Christmas spirit effected the cure. Such cures are fairly common.

WHAT IS GOOD TO EAT TODAY IN THE MARKET

Since foodstuffs have been on the free list shipments of beef, mutton, lamb and butter and other farm products have been coming to Boston in ever increasing quantities. During the present week 2,200 quarters of Argentine beef and 45,000 pounds of New Zealand butter have reached this port and ships due before the end of the week will greatly increase this total. The Chamber of Commerce quotations in both commodities show no change during the past week.

In New York they are eating eggs from Denmark. As yet Boston has received no European eggs, but large shipments are expected.

Although the receipts of potatoes at Boston since September 1 have been nearly a million bushels in excess of the receipts of the same period a year ago, the price remains high. The retail price is about thirty cents a peck. A few new potatoes from Bermuda are coming in.

Rheumatism is "pain only." Not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Stop drugging! Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil" directly upon the "tender spot," and relief comes instantly. "St. Jacobs Oil" is a harmless rheumatism cure which never disappoints and can not burn or discolor the skin.

Limber up! Quit complaining! Get a small trial bottle of "St. Jacob's Oil" from any drug store, and in just a moment you'll be free from rheumatic pain, soreness, stiffness and swelling. Don't suffer! Relief and a cure await you. "St. Jacobs Oil" has cured millions of rheumatism sufferers in the last half century, and is just as good for sciatica, neuralgia, lumbago, backache and sprains.

A Clear Complexion

Ruddy Cheeks — Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have.

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-known Ohio Physician.

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets; you will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter that one's system collects.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women, as well as men, take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets now and then just to keep in the pink of condition.

THE DEAR FOOL

The Sensational Story of the Love of a Woman of Forty for a Boy of Twenty-two.

SYNOPSIS.

BETTY DUNBAR, a society widow, who lives with her sister, Ethel Troughton, a rich spinster, is in love with a youth of twenty-two named Cecil. Betty is forty and has two sons. She is loved devotedly, but in secret by Egbert Inglefield, a close friend, who is about her age. When the story opens Betty is telling Sir Egbert of her infatuation for the youth. She admits that she will never marry Cecil because of the difference in their ages. "Aunt Ethel" appears just as Betty, Sir Egbert and the two boys have planned a picnic, and says that a telegram has arrived at the house for Betty. She is wildly excited.

(Novelized by)

A A Waterbury

From the Broadway play by H. V. Esmond—Copyright, 1914, by International News Service.

FOR what she hoped Betty scarcely knew. But a telegram always suggests such an infinite possibility of things—of death or life, or doom, or reprieve.

"Where is it? Oh, Ethel, do give it to me quickly—quickly."

But when she found that telegram on the hall table she found that "tomorrow" had indeed come; for the wire said: "Sailing tomorrow. Plans changed. Come up by the two-ten to say good-bye. Meet you Waterloo. Explain then. CECIL."

And Betty ordered the motor, and tumbled into a little frock of blue and rose color that Cecil especially admired and that she especially knew made her look almost young enough to be going up to London to meet a lad of twenty-two.

Eggy and the boys were picnicking out on the lawn and Ethel was giving cook a few elaborately indifferent luncheon orders against the coming of Lord Murdon.

In the meantime, "Mr." Effingham, the butler, had the proud honor of ushering his lordship into the manor house drawing-room. Since old Mr. Troughton's death the visits of titled guests had ceased, and even during his life these visits had always been to borrow money—never to pay neighborly respects. So in a flutter of excitement that did not at all show through the stolid demeanor of his well trained servanthood, "Mr." Effingham went to summon his mistress—from the kitchen!

Lord Murdon walked uneasily about the drawing room while he was waiting for his hostess. He was a slender young chap, with a sleek head of black hair thatching a bumpless cranium which did not suggest a wealth of ideas beneath it. His tweeds were very immaculate, his white spats carried no speck of dust from the country road, and his red and green striped tie betrayed great care in selecting a foil for his brunette type. A scarf and ring of green jade and a platinum watch chain at his concave waist line marked Lord Murdon as a youth to whom "Beau Brummel's" principles of dress for 1914 were not unknown.

Out in the garden Sir Egbert was frolicking with the two lads he would so gladly have fathered; up in her chamber Betty was using what art she could to look as if she could never be the mother of two grown lads; out in the hall a grim-faced spinster was striving for manner sufficiently indifferent to impress her titled visitors; and in the drawing room Lord Murdon was wondering how best he might impress his moneyed hostess. And Fate was preparing to drive this four-in-hand over a strange and rocky road.

At last Miss Troughton opened the door and came into her own drawing-room with less feminine grace than the effeminate, immaculate young man of thirty would have used in his stables.

"Ah! Lord Murdon, I didn't know till just this minute that you had arrived," said Ethel, in a voice that could no more lose its acidity than a grape fruit, however, well sugared, can take on the sweetness of a peach.

"Only just this minute came. You—aw—got my—er—note?"

"This morning."

Murdon saw that if there was polite conversation to be made, he was looked to manufacture it.

"Hope you didn't mind my askin' myself to lunch?" said he.

"Not all. There's always plenty to go round,' said affable Ethel.

"Now, I wonder have you any idea what I want to see you about."

"Do you want to borrow money?" And, like the walls of a vault, Ethel's lips clamped shut over the mere word—"money."

"Certainly not."

"Well, that makes things easier for us both. When my father died his business died with him; so I shouldn't have lent you any," said the sweet hostess.

At that moment there floated down the stairs a little mocking-bird figure of blue and rose and fluttering plumage. It was Betty, off for London and a bout with life—and death.

"Mary! Mary!" she called, "isn't the car there yet? Oh, Mary, didn't you tell him to hurry?"

"Plenty of time, miss," responded a servant's voice. "Twenty minutes before the 2:10."

"Oh, Ethel, there you are! How d'ye do, Lord Murdon," cried Betty, all in a palpitant breath. "I've got to go to town—most important—that telegram, you know. It was from Dolly Palgraive, reminding me of my promise to be with her this afternoon."

MORE LIES.

"Dolly Palgrave wired you! What for?" asked the sister of fifty quite as if Betty were a child preparing to play truant—which is precisely what she was.

Murdon looked on and gained no new and unexpected impression of Ethel's sweet, amiable lovableness.

"I daresay. Well, I'll be back by the seven-forty—so don't wait dinner."

"Could you call at the Army and Navy stores for my umbrella? It's just next door."

"I'll tie a knot in my handkerchief as soon as I get to the train. Be good to my best and most beautiful Jackie while his mother's gone. Oh, there's the car!"

And off dashed Betty to keep her tryst with her young lover, leaving Ethel to keep a tryst of a far different sort, and one that was to have a very different ending.

There was a moment's pause, which suggested even to Ethel's untrained perceptions that something was in the air.

"Forgive me for a moment while I arrange these beech leaves, won't you, Lord Murdon?" said Milady of the Manor, busying herself with great plumes of the green and copper back.

"Very decorative things, beech leaves," ventured Lord Murdon.

"Very."

"Wants a touch of the copper to bring out the full harmony of the tender green, don't you think?"

"Yes."

"Some people have a gift for arranging vases."

"Yes"—very grimly from the lady.

"It is a gift, ye know; I've got it."

"I'm sure you have."

The rustling of the leaves and conversational pause! Lord Murdon tried again—on a new tack.

"Do you mind my talking to you about what I came about—while you're doing that?".

"No."

"I rather want to get it over—it's business—and I, aw, hate business. Do you mind my smoking a cigarette?"

"No. But if you don't come to borrow money what possible business can you have with me?"

From a monstrous flat silver case monogrammed in flashing emeralds—gift of Sophie Flashly, of the music halls—Lord Murdon selected a gold-marked Russian cigarette with the same nicety and care he was about to show in selecting something very different.

ICEMAN OUTWITS HIM

WHITE PLAINS, Feb. 13.—George Ferguson, John D. Rockefeller's iceman, has a great joke on the oil king.

Last Winter was mild and the icemen cut no ice. Mr. Rockefeller had to pay seventy cents a hundred, and laughingly told Ferguson it was the highest priced watered stock he had ever bought.

When Mr. Rockefeller went to Cleveland last Summer he wrote to tell Ferguson that he was going to organize the Pocantico Hills Ice Trust by building an ice plant of his own capable of making 1,000 pounds a day.

When Mr. Rockefeller returned the other day he twitted Ferguson good-naturedly about trusts. However, he who laughs last laughs best.

Ferguson rents one of Mr. Rockefeller's ponds. He got one crop early in the season and the recent cold snap assured him of another. With his icehouses full, he is in a position to sell Mr. Rockefeller ice from his own pond cheaper than Mr. Rockefeller can make it.

Houston to Leave Cabinet in March

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Notwithstanding the fact that President Wilson has expressed unwillingness to have his Secretary of Agriculture leave the Cabinet to become a member of the Federal Reserve Board, it is believed Mr. Houston will be named. It is expected Mr. Houston will retire from the Cabinet next month.

The Ohio Medical Journal recently stated: "All woman's pains, whether headache, sideache, backache or pain of any description caused by suppressed or irregular menstruation, yield to two anti-kamnia tablets. EATING RELIEVES STOMACH TROUBLE

A Prominent Physician's Advice.

"Eat good foods and plenty of them. Dieting, in many cases, is almost criminal. Get back to normal. To do so you must have the proper quantity of nourishment. You need it for brain or physical work. Probably there is nothing the matter with your stomach except acidity. That is merely an abnormal secretion of acid in the stomach. Neutralize that acid and your stomach trouble will end at once. Neglect may mean ulcers if not cancer of the stomach. Do not take patented medicines or pepsin tablets for dyspepsia. Simply take a neutralizer of acid. Decidedly the best neutralizer is ordinary druggist's bisurated magnesia. You can get it at any drug store for a few cents. Take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water after each meal. The relief will be immediate."—Adv.

THE WOMAN THOU GAVEST ME

Hall Caine's Greatest Story

THE NARRATIVE OF MARY O'NEILL

FOURTH PART

I FALL IN LOVE

Copyright, 1912, by Hearst's Magazine. Copyright, 1913, by Hearst's Magazine. Copyright in Great Britain. Copyright, 1913, by J. B. Lippincott Company.

As the newcomers entered I saw that Nessy had developed an old maid's idea of smartness, and that my father's lawyer was more than ever like an over-fatted fish; but my father himself (except that his hair was whiter) was the same man still, with the same heavy step, the same loud voice and the same tempestuous gaiety.

"All here? Good! Glad to be home, I guess! Strong and well and hearty, I suppose? . . . Yes, sir, yes! I'm middling myself, sir. Middling, sir, middling!"

HER FATHER'S EYES.

During these rugged salutations I saw that Alma, with the bad manners of a certain type of society woman, looked on with a slightly impertinent air of amused superiority, until she encountered my father's masterful eyes, which nobody in the world could withstand.

After a moment my father addressed himself to me.

"Well, gel," he said, taking me by the shoulders, as he did in Rome, "you must have cut a dash in Egypt, I guess. Made the money fly, didn't you? No matter! My gold was as good as anybody else's, and I didn't grudge it. You'll clear me of that, anyway."

Then there was some general talk about our travels, about affairs on the island (Mr. Curphy saying, with a laugh and a glance in my direction, that things were going so well with my father that if all his schemes matured he would have no need to wait for a descendant to become the "uncrowned King of Ellan"), and finally about Martin Conrad, whose great exploits had become known even in his native country.

"Extraordinary! Extraordinary!" said my father. "I wouldn't have believed it of him, I wouldn't really. Just a neighbor lad without a penny at him. And now the world's trusting him with fifty thousand pounds, they're telling me!"

"Well, many are caled but few are chosen," said Mr Curphy with another laugh.

After that, and some broken conversation, Aunt Bridget expressed a desire to see the house, as the evening was closing in and they must soon be going back.

Lady Margaret thereupon took her, followed by the rest of us, over the principal rooms of the Castle, and it was interesting to see the awe with which she looked upon everything—her voice dropping to a whisper in the dining-room, I remember, as if the scene of carousing of the old roysterers had been a sort of sanctuary.

My father, less impressed, saw nothing but a home in bad repair, and turning to my husband, who had been obviously ill at ease, he said:

"Go on like this much longer, son-in-law, and you'll be charging twopence a head to look at your ruins. Guess I must send my architect over to see what he can do for you."

Then taking me aside he made his loud voice as low as he could and said:

"What's this your Aunt Bridget tells me? Nine months married and no sign yet? Tut, tut! That won't do, gel, that won't do."

I tried to tell him not to spend money on the Castle if he intended to do so in expectation of an heir, but my heart was in my mouth and what I really said I do not know. I only know that my father looked at me for a moment as if perplexed, and then burst into laughter.

"I see! I see!" he said. "It's a doctor you want. I must send Conrad to put a sight on you. It'll be all right, gel, it'll be all right! Your mother was like that when you were coming."

As we returned to the hall Betsy Beauty whispered that she was surprised Mr. Eastcliff had married, but she heard from madame that we were to have a house party soon, and she hoped I would not forget her.

Then Aunt Bridget, who had been eyeing Alma darkly, asked me who and what she was and where she came from, whereupon I (trying to put the best face on things, explained that she was the daughter of a rich New York banker. After that Aunt Bridget's countenance cleared perceptibly and she said:

"Ah yes, of course! I thought she had a quality toss with her."

The two motor cars had been drawn up to the door, and the two parties had taken their seats in them when my father, looking about him, said to my husband:

"Your garden is as rough as a thornbrush, son-in-law. I must send Tommy and Mate to smarten it up a bit. So long! So long!"

At the next moment they were gone, and I was looking longingly after them. God knows my father's house had never been more than a stepmother's home to me, but at that moment I yearned to return to it and felt like a child who was being left behind at school.

What had I gained by running away from London? Nothing at all. Already I knew I had brought my hopeless passion with me.

And now I was alone.

Fifty-seventh Chapter.

NEXT day Lady Margaret came to my room to say good-bye, telling me she had only stayed at Castle Raa to keep house and make ready for me, and must now return to her own home, which was in London.

I was sorry, for my heart warmed to her, and when I stood at the door and saw her drive off with my husband to catch the afternoon steamer I felt I had lost both sympathy and protection.

Alma's feelings were less troubled, and as we turned back into the house I could see that she was saying to herself:

"Thank goodness, she's gone away."

A day or two later Dr. Conrad came, according to my father's instructions, and I was glad to see his close-cropped iron-grey head coming up the stairs towards my room.

Naturally our first conversation was about Martin, who had written to tell his parents of our meeting in London and to announce his intended visit. It was all very exciting, and now his mother was working morning and night at the old cottage, to prepare for the arrival of her son. Such scrubbing and scouring! Such taking up of carpets and laying them down again, as if the darling old thing were expecting a prince!

"It ought to be Sunny Lodge indeed before she's done with it," said the doctor.

"I'm sure it will," I said. "It always was, and it always will be."

"And how are we ourselves," said the doctor. "A little below par, eh? Any sickness? No? Nausea? No? Headache and a feeling of lassitude, then? No?"

After other questions and tests, the old doctor was looking puzzled, when, not finding it in my heart to keep him in the dark any longer, I told him there was nothing amiss with my health, but I was unhappy and had been so since the time of my marriage.

"I see," he said. "It's your mind and not your body that is sick?"

"Yes."

"I'll speak to Father Dan," he said. "Good-bye! God bless you!"

Less than half an hour after he had gone, Alma came to me in her softest mode, saying the doctor had said I was suffering from extreme nervous exhaustion and ought to be kept from worries and anxieties of every kind.

"So if there's anything I can do while I'm here, dearest . . . such as look after the house and the servants . . . No, no, don't deny me; it will be a pleasure, I assure you. . . . So we'll say that's settled, shall we? . . . You dear, sweet darling creature!"

To be continued tomorrow.

SERIES OF FIRES CAUSE BIG LOSS IN NEW ENGLAND

FRAMINGHAM, Feb. 13.—Thirty-eight girl students at Framingham State Normal School, Principal and Mrs. Henry Whittemore and Miss Dawson, the matron, were driven out in the freezing cold in their night clothing by a fire in Normal Hall, the large wooden dormitory on Normal Hill, at 4:15 o'clock today.

When the first smoke curled up through the building Principal and Mrs. Whittemore gave a general alarm.

FLEE IN THE COLD.

Frightened girls rushed out from their rooms without stopping for outside clothing. They fled down the stairways and outdoors, across the frozen ground and into Crocker Hall, another dormitory.

The girls in Crocker Hall, roused by the excitement, rushed from their rooms and gathered in the hallways, where they comforted and reassured the refugees from Normal Hall.

NOT MUCH FLAME.

Normal Hall is a three-story structure, with wide stairways. The fire started, it is thought, from a defective flue of an open fireplace. From the flue the flames worked slowly through the woodwork between the outer walls and the sheathing. There was not much flame, but smoke filled every hall and chamber.

Principal Whittemore telephoned the first alarm to the central fire station The apparatus had a half-mile run by the long road around the hill, but made almost record time to the summit. District Chief W. F. Welch ordered a second alarm, bringing enough extra apparatus so that the firemen were able to keep the fire well in hand.

MUCH CLOTHING SAVED.

Meanwhile the police and a number of citizens had done excellent work in saving the clothes and other personal property of the occupants of the dormitory. Patrolmen Crowley and Hannigan were on the scene quickly. They were soon assisted by Frank Kendall, the Boston architect, Howard Brown, the Boston lawyer, who have residences near the school, by Ernest Beetlestone and others.

These men ran from room to room to make sure that all the girls were out. Then, in each room, they grabbed what clothes, valuables and other goods they could pick up, bundled them in bed sheets and threw the bundles out the window. They were picked up and carried into Crocker Hall.

The chief damage, amounting to $12,000, was done by smoke and water.

SUFFERING AND DEATH AS COLD GRASPS BOSTON

said that nine deaths and thousands of cases of frost bite and other suffering were caused by the cold wave. At 8 a. m. the New York temperature was 1 degree below zero. The hospitals, municipal lodging houses and other institutions for relief in the five boroughs were working overtime. The New York weather station has issued a blizzard warning.

SNOW AND "WARMER."

David McLaughlin of No. 15 Billerica street was in dangerous condition from exposure at the City Hospital today. Elizio Canevera, a baritone in the Boston Opera House chorus, collapsed from cold at the South station.

The temperature ranged higher through Greater Boston today. The average suburban reading at breakfast time was six below.

The lowest official temperature for Boston was three below, compared with eleven below at 5 o'clock yesterday morning. This was the coldest February 13 in the history of the local weather station.

At 10 o'clock the official temperature had risen to 5 above zero, with a forecast for Boston and vicinity of "Snow and warmer."

and for the man who wants a still better coat at an even bigger saving, there's a good variety even yet in

This was proved when detectives, suddenly appearing among the dancers at a ball of the Bachelor's Club, in the Bronx, began to search a number of supposed gunmen. No pistols were found on the men, but from one of the prettiest girls a policeman confiscated a fully loaded revolver.

AND SEE IT LATER IN THE MOVING PICTURES!

(Afternoon or Evening)

The American and Pathe Freres Collaborate in a Plan to Amuse, Entertain and Educate Boston.

An unusually fine film drama in two reels, "The Chains of Honor," is released by Pathe Freres tomorrow (Saturday). The theme is a familiar one—unjust accusation, under which the victim, to save a woman, suffers in silence—but it is handled in the pictures in an artistic fashion that makes it doubly effective. The old Pathe favorites appear, and have an unusual opportunity for emotional display.

Every day the AMERICAN presents a fictionized version of one of the new Pathe photo plays. This one—"The Chains of Honor"—is in two parts and will be continued tomorrow.

PART I.

Giovanni came in late and found Gardoni hatted and coated to depart. While his employer was giving final instructions Giovanni—carelessly turning the papers on his desk, suddenly uncovered a tinted envelope addressed in a hand writing that made him start. He covered it with his hand and slipped it out of sight, as Gardoni said:

"I've sent Guiseppe to the bank. When I come back I will want some money, and he has a check for 80,000 lire. If he doesn't come before I go—just lock it in the safe and I'll get it tonight."

Giovanni nodded: "Yes, master." He was ill at ease with the consciousness of that note he was hiding. "You will be back—"

But at that moment Guiseppe returned—drew from his pocket the packet of money—handed it to the master. But Gardoni waved it away. "No, lock it up, Giovanni. I'll get it tonight." The next moment he was gone. Giovanni moved absently to the safe, thrust the money inside and turned the key. It was an old-fashioned safe—and he dropped the key on his desk—unconscious of the greedy eye which the clerk, Guiseppe, bent upon him. Guiseppe had felt the crackle of the money between his fingers. He was intoxicated by it. Giovanni, ignoring him, cautiously opened the note and read:

> My Giovanni: Gardoni is gone for the day. Send Guiseppe away likewise. Then—come to me—in my sitting-room. I must, I will see you—my own Giovanni.

SHOULD HE GO?

The note was signed by his employer's young wife. His employer was old—she was a child. Giovanni crushed the paper in his hand and shot a glance at the unconscious Guiseppe.

Should he go—or not. He had seen her advances—her coquettish attempts to enslave him—and had pretended not to see. But she would not be ignored—and even in her husband's presence shot sly glances of admiration at the young man. He thought of his own fiancee—then thought that even she would tell him to go and settle this, once for all, by telling Mme. Gardoni his heart was elsewhere bestowed. He read the note again. "Send Guiseppe away likewise"—then called the clerk.

"Guiseppe—ho," he called. "Please go for me to the dock and arrange for those ladings. They should go today."

Guiseppe rose with apparent readiness—seized his hat—was gone.

The office was in the same building as Gardoni's apartment. No sooner had Giovanni—forgetting even the key to the safe—taken his departure toward Mme. Gardoni's sitting-room than the door opened a crack—Guiseppe reappeared. He moved with inconceivable speed and stealth—seized the key from Giovanni's desk—whisked open the safe—caught up the money—relocked the safe—replaced the key—and was gone!

THE MONEY GONE.

It was ten minutes later that Giovanni reappeared—tearing the note to bits in his fingers. His face was twisted with anger and distress. Through the open door ere it closed behind him came a woman's pleading voice—and Mme. Gardoni followed him into the room—implored him—sought to cast her arms about his neck, besought him to be kind. Determinedly he put her away—and at a step outside, she slipped back into her apartments—weeping. Guiseppe appeared at the door, his errand done.

* * *

Giovanni had no occasion to look within the safe that day. But in late afternoon, Gardoni appeared—with his own key threw open the door—and sought the money. It was gone!

He turned hotly toward the two men—Giovanni and Guiseppe.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

The present cold snap found the motorists ready for a visit of low temperature and as a result but very few radiators were frozen and the repair men had much less extra work than they had during the last cold spell. Experience is a great teacher as well as being the road that lies behind.

A great many of the local dealers are in attendance at the Portland show, which will continue for the remainder of the week. In fact, it can be said that there are very few of the Boston houses who have not lost at least one representative in the Maine city. Several of these gentlemen drove to the show over the road, including Otto Lawton of the Franklin and Ralph Coburn, New England manager of the Maxwell. The latter made a record run, leaving Boston in the Maxwell Model 25, at 6:25 o'clock last Tuesday morning and reaching Portland at 11:15 that same morning, in the running time of five hours and ten minutes. There was a half-hour stop for gasoline and refreshments. The motor never stopped once and the average speed was better than twenty miles an hour. The roads were snowy, icy and rutty and the temperatures averaged 18 degrees above zero.

SAVES ELDERLY PEOPLE FROM KIDNEY AND BLADDER MISERIES

Sleep Disturbing Bladder Weaknesses, Backache, Stiff Joints, Rheumatic Pains Disappear After Few Doses are Taken

While people along in years are naturally more subject to weak kidneys, they can avoid the tortures of backache, and rheumatism, and be saved the annoyance of getting up at night with disagreeable bladder disorders, for the new discovery, Croxone, quickly relieves the most severe and obstinate cases.

Croxone cures these conditions because it removes the cause. It is the most wonderful remedy ever devised for ridding the system of uric acid. It is entirely different from all other remedies. It is not like anything else ever used for the purpose. Croxone makes the kidneys filter the blood and sift out all the poisonous acids and waste matter that cause these troubles.

It soaks right in and cleans out the stopped-up, inactive kidneys like water does a sponge, dissolves and drives out every particle of uric acid and other poisonous impurities that lodge in the joints and muscles and cause rheumatism. It neutralizes the urine so it no longer irritates the bladder, overcomes unnecessary breaking of sleep and restores the kidneys and bladder to health and strength.

It matters not how long you have suffered, how old you are, or what else you have used. The very principle of Croxone is such that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. There is nothing else on earth like it. It starts to work the minute you take it and relieves you the first time you use it, and all your misery and suffering soon disappear. You can secure an original package of Croxone at trifling cost from any first-class druggist. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if it fails in a single case.

CUT IN OPERA SEASON COMES AS NO SURPRISE

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

The announcement that the Boston Opera season next year will be reduced to twelve weeks does not come as a surprise to those who have been following events at the Opera House this season.

Mr. Jordan has given Boston four full seasons of grand opera upon the same scale as it is given in New York. It was not expected during the first two years that the public would require nearly five months of opera, but it was hoped that patronage would grow so that five months would not be too much.

It has not done so. The attendance this season has been about the same as last year and the year before.

Under ordinary circumstances it would be impossible for an opera company of the character of this one to give a season of only twelve weeks and hold the orchestra, chorus and ballet.

If the Board of Directors of the Opera House have voted to shorten the season to twelve weeks, it is because an arrangement has been made by which the orchestra, chorus and ballet will be given employment for six or eight weeks longer.

This can only mean that the Boston company will enter Philadelphia next season in place of the Chicago organization.

With the prestige of its season in Paris the Boston Company should prove as acceptable to the Philadelphians as the Chicago troupe.

The Philadelphia enterprise has been denied most vigorously by interested persons in the Quaker City and by the Chicago Company, but it would be to their interest to deny it while the opera season is still on.

A clever device to induce the subscribers to subscribe twice instead of once a week is the plan to give twenty-four operas in twelve weeks, giving each opera twice instead of four times as at present. This curtailment of the season results in a corresponding reduction in the price of season tickets.

Cannon Says Wilson Smashed Prosperity

PEORIA, Ill., Feb. 13.—"Uncle Joe" Cannon devoted the greater part of a speech here to denouncing President Wilson for his shattering of precedents, declaring that what Wilson has smashed is prosperity. He added:

"A year ago Mr. Wilson was engaged in building a gallows higher than Haman's for the trusts, but in the latest message from the White House we find that the gallows have been transformed into a maypole and the trusts are invited to join the President in a May day dance to celebrate the new constitution of peace.

'Boys Always Bad,' Says Juvenile Judge

"Boys will always be bad, but I don't believe the youth of today is any worse than the boy of twenty years ago. If anything I think there has been improvement," said Judge Harvey H. Baker in an address on "The Boy and the Juvenile Court," at the third public conference held in Temple Israel. He likened the Juvenile Court to the hospital.

A Fine Tonic That Prevents Wasted Energy

Proper Stimulus to Nerve Centers Gives Impetus to Blood Health.

So many people refer to the "merit" of S. S. S. By this they mean that it causes them to feel good; they get rid of stagnation. Things are happening within us all the time that give evidence of having slipped a cog.

We are constantly producing waste products that should come out promptly.

But they accumulate here and there, the nerves tell us about it, the skin shows it, there are almost always certain indications that we need help.

The blood and the nerves are so intimately associated that they are mutually dependent upon each other for health. And since the influence of S. S. S. is so pronounced in the blood it necessarily must prove a proper stimulus to the nerves whereby each assists the other to check and eliminate conditions of disease.

There is probably no other remedy so well known as S. S. S. for the blood. And for this reason it is the one remedy invariably called for. But there are many people who do not insist upon having S. S. S. and are easily persuaded to try something else "just as good," so they are told. If your blood is thin; if you have rheumatic pains; if your skin is irritated with eczema, lupus, tetter, psoriasis, or any other blood humour; if you are troubled with pimples or boils do not permit yourself to be talked into buying something else, but insist upon S. S. S. It is really a remarkable remedy. It contains one ingredient, the active purpose of which is to stimulate the tissues to the healthy selection of its own essential nutriment. And the medicinal elements of this matchless blood purifier are just as essential to well-balanced health as the nutritious elements of the meats, grains, fats and sugars of our daily food.

Not only this, but if from the presence of some disturbing poison there is a local or general interference of nutrition to cause boils, carbuncles, abscesses and kindred troubles, S. S. S. so directs the local cells that this poison is rejected and eliminated from their presence.

Then, too, S. S. S. has such specific stimulation on these local cells as to preserve their mutual welfare and a proper relative assistance to each other.

In a very brief time S. S. S. has the reconstructive process so under control that remarkable changes are observed. All eruptive places heal, mysterious pains and aches have disappeared, and from head to foot there is a conscious sensation of renewed health. That strange, moody, morbid feeling of depression is lifted, and the entire system responds with surprising energy.

From the fact that S. S. S. is purely a botanical preparation, it is accepted by the weakest stomach and has great tonic influence in all the digestive organs. It is certainly a wonderful blood medicine, and is prepared direct from native materials gathered by the experts of the famous Swift Laboratory. Not one drop of minerals or drugs is used in its preparation. Ask for S. S. S. and insist upon having it.

You can get S. S. S. at any drug store. Beware of any effort to sell you something claimed to be "just as good." If yours is a peculiar case and you desire expert advice, write to The Swift Specific Co., 209 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

CLOCK'S STILL GOING; WHAT'S THAT ANSWER?

The sun's shining at Palm Beach. It's a little chilly at the North Pole. The United States and Chelsea are in the grip of Winter. And in Boston everybody is working on the new 'brain twister' about the clock. Here's the problem—and answers are pouring in:

> "If a calendar clock, which indicates the second, minute, hour and the day of the month shows the correct time at 5 p. m. on Saturday, January 17, and gains 10 minutes daily, what will be the correct time when the clock indicates that it is 5 p. m. on February 17?"

Among the answers are:

50 SOLONS TO SEE EXPERTS DANCE TANGO

Some fifty legislators will attend, it now appears, the tango exhibition at Le Petit Trianon, No. 280 Boylston street, Saturday night. Dancing experts, some of them professionals, are to demonstrate how to tango properly, and how not to tango.

The legislators are considering a bill introduced by Lewis R. Sullivan, forbidding the "tnago, lame-duck Argentine, chicken flip, bunny hug, grizzly glide—or any dance participation which is not conducive to propriety." In order that they may deal intelligently with the measure, the AMERICAN has arranged this exhibition. Besides the dancing by amateur and professional experts, there will be demonstrations of the tango as it appears in Boston dance halls.

Here is a partial list of the dancers who will demonstrate the new steps: Lucille Perry Hall and Mr. Cole, Fannie Faulhaber and a partner, Pauline Jones and a partner, Lilla Viles Wyman and partner, Amelia Burnham and Le Roy Young, Mrs. C. B. Richmond and partner, Pauline Chamberlain and Harold Whitney, Alice Fessenden and Earl Schroeder.

In addition to these it is hoped that Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Castle, inventors of the Castle Walk, will appear. They are to be in Boston Saturday, demonstrating at an afternoon dance and attending the performance of "Under Cover" at the Plymouth Theatre in the evening. It is hoped they will be able to come to Le Petit Trianon for one dance.

Le Petit Trianon, where the dance is to be held, is an exquisite little private dancing club under the auspices of the best known society folk in Boston. It is an exclusive club, numbering half the names in the social register. At present these dansants are held, but shortly evening dances will be begun.

Eckman's Alterative is beneficial in checking fever and night sweats and it has brought about many complete recoveries. Read this case:

305 W. 36th St., New York.

"Gentlemen:—I am writing you this testimonial that others may know what your Alterative has done for me. Since I was a very young woman I was a sufferer from Bronchitis. I tried doctor after doctor, getting little or no benefit. Finally I had night sweats, weak spells and lost rapidly in weight, and my doctor told me if they were not checked I would have Lung Trouble. Miss Mary Korhamer, who is a friend of mine, recovered after taking your Alterative, and insisted that I try it. I am now, after two years, perfectly well, strong and healthy."

(Affidavit.) MRS. ROSA VOELPEL.

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious for severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Contains no narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. Sold by leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

ON WITH THE TANGO TONIGHT AT HARVARD

Society girls from Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington and Chicago, a dance order that calls for the tango, hesitation and one-step in all but two of its twenty-four numbers, and an order for the orchestra to remain until 4 o'clock Saturday morning combine to make the junior "prom" at Harvard tonight the biggest event of its kind in years.

There is no ban on the modern dances at Harvard and the "prom" committee decided that decorous conduct has always been the rule at other Harvard dances and that there is no reason to believe propriety will be shattered by the 1915 class members.

"The International Rag," "Horse Trot," "Get Out and Get Under," "Pullman Porters' Parade," "You've Got Your Mother's Big Blue Eyes," "Humoreske Rag," "Too Much Ginger," "Chesapeake Bay" and "Mammy Jinny's Jubilee" are among the selections the orchestra has chosen. The tango, grape vine or castle walk may be danced to any one of these.

The patronesses are: Mrs. E. F. Atkins, Mrs. F. J. Bradlee, Mrs. W. H. Claflin, Mrs. R. S. Codman, Mrs. J. S. Courtney, Mrs. H. De Ford, Mrs. S. H. Fessenden, Mrs. K. Francke, Mrs. J. J. Eight-Hour Bill Goes to Wilson

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—By unanimous vote the House has passed the La Follette bill providing an eight-hour day for all women employes in mercantile and industrial establishments, telephone, telegraph and express offices in the District of Columbia. The bill will go to the President today, having already passed the Senate.

LATE NEWS BY CABLE

Paquin to Exhibit Models in Boston.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—Paquin has sprung a surprise on the American buyers by announcing that he intends to give his own exhibition in America next month. Mme. Joire, sister-in-law of Mme. Paquin, will sail on February 21 with mannequins and 100 models. She will begin the exhibitions in New York, and afterward in Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago.

Rembrandt "Relics" Bogus.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—It has been discovered that the supposed Rembrandt relics, consisting of a palette and a mahlstick of ivory, said to have belonged to the painter, which were bought by Mr. Sabin in Holland and provisionally accepted by the National Gallery here, are bogus.

Kaiser Forbids Speeding.

BERLIN, Feb. 13.—The Tageblatt says that in consequence of the accident to the automobile which was escorting the Kaiser's machine to Potsdam the Emperor has ordered the police to issue regulations against speeding.

Women Defy Hatpin Edict.

PARIS, Feb. 13.—Twice has the prefect issued stern edicts against unprotected hatpins, yet Parisiennes cheerfully disobey them. The prefect has issued orders to refuse admission to public vehicles to all women carrying unprotected hatpins.

Slit Skirt Tightens Hold on the Public

LONDON, Feb. 13.—Secrets of the Spring fashions are beginning to become known. On one point many of the leading dressmakers are very emphatic, and that is that the slit-up skirt, far from being a back number, will carry all before it in the coming season, the "slit-up" effect being carried to more daring lengths.

"I CAN'T JUST MAKE THESE EYES BEHAVE"

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—"I just can't make my eyes behave; that's the honest truth," pretty little Lorraine Parker—the dainty model over whom artists have raved—declared yesterday.

Her bewitching eyes and her charming smile won the heart of "Jack" Anderson, his child-wife asserts, and caused him to forget his marriage vows. This is the reason why Mrs. Marguerite Ebling Anderson, heiress to the millions which the brewer, Ebling, accumulated, is suing for divorce.

"A fortune teller once told me," said Miss Parker yesterday, "that I'll never be married because of my eyes. It made me sad at first, but I don't believe her. She said I'd find many men to follow those eyes, but none to follow them to the altar. Said they wouldn't trust my eyes.

"It was night time when I first met 'Jack' Anderson. He was sitting at a table in Bustanoby's and I was about ten feet away. One look from my eyes seemed to hypnotize him. After the tango and a little champagne he gave me his card and asked to be allowed to call.

"So far as my eyes are concerned I've just got to make the best of them. They're the only ones I'll ever have. It isn't my fault if I can't make them behave."

Prohibit Babies by Parcel Post

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—In reply to a query by an Oklahoma postmaster as to the sending of babies by parcel post, Postmaster-General Burleson says that the only living creatures that may be handled by parcel post in the future are queen bees.

Several weeks ago a child was sent from Oklahoma to an Eastern city by parcel post.

Red Tag Sale

Legal Stamps With Every Purchase

Brevity is as truly the soul of sales as it is of wit. When money-saving chances stand out with such convincing strength as they do in this Red Tag Sale—the story can best be told with telegraphic briefness—as we are telling it below. It's a mighty fine and a mighty unusual chance to get things right—out of the ordinary conditions have made this possible and out of the ordinary values are the result.

This Red Tag Sale is a clearaway sale. Every kind of merchandise that is broken in quantity, size or assortment—in fact, every piece of goods that belongs to the winter season—we mark down for quick clearance. The first price of the article is sold by the original white tag or ticket (which remains on the goods)—the mark down price is put on a Red Tag and also strung on the article. This makes it easy for you to verify your saving on each purchase.

PASSING THE BUCK TO GOVERNOR WALSH AND OTHER INDOOR SPORT

Your attention is earnestly directed, first thing off the bat today, to the address made last night before the Lincoln Club of Boston by Representative Channing H. Cox of Ward 10.

* * *

When the Republican floor leader of the Massachusetts House of Representatives speaks right out in meeting in favor of a Constitutional Convention, the Initiative and Referendum, a vote of the people as to Equal Suffrage, in favor of biennial elections and in favor of the short ballot, it is high time for everybody to take notice.

* * *

Channing Cox is a Dartmouth man, an attorney and thirty-five years old. This is his fifth year in the House. He began in politics as a protege of former Senator Charles H. Innes. His speech last night will stand as one of the truly sensational incidents of the legislative and political year. Heed it.

* * *

A resolution protesting in the name of the people of Massachusetts against the Immigration Bill passed the other day by the House of Representatives at Washington is on the Calendar of the Massachusetts House. It comes with the recommendation of our Committee on Federal Relations that it "ought to be adopted." And it is likely to go through with a hurrah.

* * *

Giving the New Lines the Pulmotor.

Several railroads to the moon will not be built this year.

* * *

They are asking for an extension of time to July 1, 1915, for signs of life in the Boston & Providence Interurban.

* * *

While Charles S. Baxter of the Progressive Republicans (remember the Progressive Republicans?) asks that the Boston & Eastern be provided with a pulmotor until April 1, 1915.

* * *

In both cases the delay is attributed in part to the condition of the money market.

* * *

The trustees of the Northampton State Hospital take occasion in their annual report to the Governor and Council to remind us that there is something to be said for and about the nurses in the Massachusetts asylums for the insane.

* * *

The average number of patients at Northampton is 872. The weekly per capita cost to the State is $2.28. The trustees say:

* * *

> A nurse's duties are arduous and exacting. Association day after day with patients who are demented, and with those who are so absorbed in their delusions that they are indifferent to any friendly advances, is depressing to a sane mind. Comparatively few of the patients are companionable in any sense of the word, except those who are convalescing, and these soon leave the hospital. Many of the patients are quarrelsome, querulous, not easily manageable, having been sent here because their relatives could not or would not get along with them at home. There is always the possibility of injury by one of the turbulent class, and of undeserved complaint or criticism by some suspicious and unreasonable relative.

* * *

* * *

Wherein the Lobby May Be Called Out.

The biggest thing of the year up to date, Governor Walsh's recommendation that the charitable and correctional institutions of the State be turned over to a Board of (five) Commissioners of Public Institutions, with a director, four executive secretaries and a business agent, is now in the hands of the Committee on Ways and Means and the Committee on Public Institutions.

* * *

The interested public will do well to bear in mind that the boards of trustees to be legislated out of office by the pending measure are made up of 136 men and women not without powerful influence in this Commonwealth, and that the institutions affected give employment to 4,537 people.

* * *

If these men and women decide that they do not like the plan outlined by the Governor, and the Economy and Efficiency Board, we are not unlikely to see some lobbying of the very highest and most pronounced variety.

* * *

It Comes to Pass Weeds Are Agriculture.

Dr. Marian Cowan Burrows has asked the Legislature to pass a bill to see that noxious weeds are pulled up along the roadside in the months of July and September every year.

* * *

This bill, which has to do with the public health, was somehow referred to the Committee on Agriculture, where, of course, it has a fine, fat chance. Warren F. Jewett has already appeared in opposition to it, representing the State Grange.

* * *

Dr. Burrows spoke eloquently in the name of every hay fever sufferer in Massachusetts.

* * *

And here's hoping that everybody who laughs at the bill, and all who vote against it, is initiated into the Sneeze Club on August 15, 1914.

* * *

House Is Shy of Windjammers.

Senator Charles A. Dean of Wakefield believes the present aggregation of statesmen and lawmakers will achieve a high mark of efficiency.

* * *

"I have been looking the boys over," Senator Dean said today, "and it strikes me they are largely of a new type. The way they have settled down in the House to the hard work of killing bills indicates that there are few grandstand players among them. This disposition to clear the docket, and to cut out frills, together with the absence of any big piece of legislation, should send us home earlier than has frequently been the case in the recent past."

* * *

* * *

Others than Senator Dean have observed that the present House is shy on grandstand players and windjammers.

* * *

Up to Walsh— with a String.

The Legislature appears to have hit upon the neat little plan of putting its "puzzlers" "up to Walsh."

* * *

The other day it was a little matter of whether last year's recess committees on Tuberculosis and Child Labor should be paid $1,000 a man for their labors between the close of the session and New Year's Day.

* * *

There was a terrific battle in the House, Tague, Lomasney and others, reminding the Cushingites that Cushing and Foss were against the investigations, that the Speaker had named no man to either committee who had spoken in favor of investigation, and that Governor Foss—appealed to by Mr. Cushing—had declared that there would be no money for such committeemen.

* * *

On the second day of fighting the Republican leaders decided that this matter could best be handled by the Governor and Council."

* * *

So it is up to Walsh.

* * *

With this little string on it:

* * *

That in no event shall such payment to said committees exceed $1,800.

* * *

Which, d'ye mind, was the amount ked in the bills over which there had been such tempestuous squabbling!

* * *

The odds are still $9,000,000 to a Narrow Gauge ticket (cancelled) that the recess committeemen will get their money. And that other recess committeemen will come after them, and get their money, and others after them, and get THEIR money, and so on and so on, forever.

CASTOR OIL IS A DIFFERENT THING, NOW

That Is, the Taste and Odor Have Been Removed

Kellogg's Tasteless Castor Oil Is the Best Laxative in 3000 Years

Spencer Kellogg & Sons of Buffalo, oil refiners, have succeeded in taking the offensive taste and smell out of castor oil.

The Kelloggs have done what chemists have tried to do and failed for 3,000 years.

Doctors recommend castor oil as the simplest, safest and best laxative. Every household will use it oftener now that it is tasteless.

Kellogg's Tasteless Castor Oil is pure, clear, refined castor oil, and so entirely without taste that children take it easily.

This perfect laxative is now on sale in all drug stores. Order Kellogg's Tasteless Castor Oil by name, to distinguish it from various mixed and flavored castor oils which are not tasteless. The trade mark is on every label—a green castor leaf bearing the signature—Kellogg's. 25c and 50c sizes.

HE BEAT THE "BROWNIES," THIS man.

But this man drove into Cambridge today wearing a STRAW HAT.

He is a farmer, for he drove a team of horses which hauled a load of hay.

He wore a heavy ulster. On his head was a broad-brimmed STRAW HAT. In the crown were two holes through which passed a broad, black cloth, with the ends drawn down snugly over the farmer's ears and tied under his chin.

With this Winter-Summer headgear, the farmer sat comfortably on the front of the load, his breath streaming and streaming out in front of him. He drove his hay outfit along Massachusetts avenue and pedestrians even halted on their shivering way to look at him.

FIERCE RIOTS IN JAPAN; 200 ARE ARRESTED

TOKIO, Feb. 13.—More than 200 persons were arrested today in fierce anti-government riots in this city. The night was one of continued disorders and five hundred policemen were kept busy dispersing mobs and protecting government buildings. Troops were held under orders in the barracks. On several occasions it looked as though their presence would be necessary at the palace.

Many editions of newspapers were suppressed and others were seized because they printed attacks against the ministry.

A great mass meeting has been called for tomorrow when resolutions will be adopted condemning the government because of high taxes. Resolutions will also call for the resignation of the Cabinet.

The fact that the present budget does not provide any relief from the heavy tax burden under which the Japanese are groaning is intensifying the hatred of the masses.

Socialistic agitators are taking advantage of the general unrest to make recruits for the cause. They charge the government with oppressing the people in order to strengthen the army and navy and they declare that Japan cherishes the secret hope of being the first naval power of the world at the end of the next ten years.

The guards about the approaches leading to Parliament building have been strengthened.

The inflamed feeling which is giving rise to the present turbulence here and elsewhere throughout the empire is not entirely the result of high taxes. The exposure of graft in the Japanese navy by which certain officers profited through contracts aroused much resentment.

For Chapped, Blotchy, Red or Wrinkled Skin

(From Family Physician.)

Do you realize that just beneath that coarse, rough or discolored complexion there's an exquisitely beautiful skin of youthful tint and delicacy? If you could only bring this complexion to the surface, discarding the old one! You can—in the easiest, simplest, most natural manner imaginable. Just get an ounce of ordinary mercolized wax at any drugstore, apply nightly like cold cream, removing it mornings with warm water. The wax assists Nature by gradually taking off the lingering particles of dead and half-dead surface skin, causing no discomfort whatever. Ordinarily it takes from a week to ten days to complete the transformation. Cutaneous defects like chaps, pimples, blotches, liver spots, moth patches, freckles, of course disappear with the old skin. Nothing else that I know of will accomplish such wonderful results in so short a time.

Fine lines and even the deeper wrinkles often appear at this season. In such cases nothing is better than a face bath made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pt. witch hazel. This is remarkably effective.

CURLEY TRIES TO "SANDBAG" BANKS AND NEWSPAPERS

ley's act in adding their name to the subscription list was the Boston Transcript. Editorially, the Transcript said:

"The Transcript declines to be 'shaken down' in public or in private."

The third protest came from the Boston Advertiser, also listed as a contributor. James W. Dunphy, editor and publisher, said:

"I have not subscribed $1,000 to the fund."

Fourth came D. B. Ogden of the Christian Science Monitor—listed as a thousand dollar contributor.

"No," said Mr. Ogden. "We were not consulted."

At this rate the Mayor's fund, which reached $1,900 on paper—would quickly vanish. Mayor Curley was today expected to issue a new, complete and authorized subscription list guaranteed not padded by the Mayor's vivid financial imagination.

At noon today the biggest question in financial circles was:

"Will Mayor Curley make good his threat against the State Street Trust?"

Another question was, "How will Mayor Curley get revenge against the Advertiser, Transcript and Monitor for disavowing the subscriptions he credited to them?"

HOW AMERICAN FARED.

Some light on what these papers may expect is thrown by the AMERICAN'S experience with Mayor Curley. This paper opposed his election. Mayor Curley in his campaign charged that the building in which the AMERICAN is published was not provided with sufficient egress in case of fire.

Mayor Curley was on last Tuesday compelled to retract this charge by the official report of Acting Building Commissioner John M. Minton, who gave the AMERICAN building a clean bill of health after the most minute examination of the building by inspectors.

Whether the Mayor will try similar methods to punish the other papers which have dared to oppose him is a question yet to be settled.

Mr. Allan Forbes precipitated the exposure by writing an open letter to Mayor Curley, in which he protested against the entry of his name as a subscriber to the fund. He characterized the Mayor's action as unfair. And in making public this letter he had written to the Mayor, Mr. Forbes added:

SINCE WRITING THE ABOVE LETTER THE MAYOR HAS TELEPHONED ME THAT NO CITY DEPOSIT WILL BE MADE AGAIN WITH THE STATE STREET TRUST COMPANY.

In regard to the statement of Mr. Forbes that after writing to the Mayor the latter telephoned him that no city deposit will be made again with the State Street Trust, Mayor Curley said:

That is quite true, all of it. I have not acted as yet and have not notified the City Treasurer concerning the deposits with the State Street Trust, but can conceive of no logical argument why the funds of the city should be deposited in any institution whose officers are so devoid of public spirit as is indicated by the president of the State Street Trust.

It will thus be seen that Mayor Curley learns nothing by experience. After trying to sandbag the AMERICAN because this newspaper refused to support him in the mayoralty campaign and threatening to close up the AMERICAN building as "a fire trap," he deliberately tries to sandbag a great trust company because the president of the trust company refuses to do something that Curley wishes him to do.

Very properly Mr. Forbes has made public the facts—just as the AMERICAN made public the facts when Curley threatened this newspaper.

It was learned today that Mayor Curley in making up his list of "subscribers," simply included the names of all the Boston papers, authorized or not.

PUBLISHED AUTHORIZATION.

NOTE BY EDITOR OF THE AMERICAN.—IT SHOULD BE STATED THAT THE VERY DAY MAYOR CURLEY MADE THE SUGGESTION IN HIS INAUGURAL THAT HE PROPOSED TO TRY TO RAISE $1,000,000 TO BOOM BOSTON THE AMERICAN CONDITIONALLY SUBSCRIBED $1,000, SETTING FORTH THAT THE MONEY WOULD NOT BE AVAILABLE FOR THE MAYOR'S FUND UNLESS THE ENTIRE AMOUNT WAS RAISED AND THE OTHER CONDITIONS, SET FORTH IN THE MAYOR'S INAUGURAL ABOUT THE FUND, WERE CARRIED [illegible]

IT IS ONLY FAIR TO SAY THAT MAYOR CURLEY HAD THE PUBLISHED AUTHORIZATION OF THE AMER- [illegible] PROVISIONS [illegible] FACTS IN THE [illegible]

CURLEY'S GROSS ABUSE OF POWER SCATHINGLY REBUKED BY PRESS

(Editorial in Transcript.)

THE "THIRD DEGREE" AT THE MAYOR'S OFFICE.

When Mayor Curley pledged the Boston Transcript for $1,000 for his fund "for the development of Boston as a commercial and industrial centre," we presume he banked upon our not having the "sand" to repudiate so unctuous a proposition. The first that any person in authority in this office heard of any such gratuity was when it appeared in the printed accounts of the meeting this morning. The Transcript will continue to be the keeper of its own conscience and its own benevolences and declines to be "shaken down" in public or in private for any enterprise of which it has not more knowledge and in whose leadership it has not more confidence than in Mayor Curley's fund. We have no desire for credit for sham generosity.

This in itself might be reason enough for renouncing the genial reputation which his honor would thrust upon us. But more than this, we have every reason to believe that others are in much the same boat as ourselves. Every paper in Boston rang this morning with the "enthusiasm" which dominated the meeting yesterday, but which in truth was really absent. Why otherwise should the Mayor commandeer the absent? The Transcript feels that it has made its contributions toward trying to make Boston a more desirable place for commerce and industry. It has done so by fighting some of the very men at the head of yesterday's movement, and their predecessors. Further than this it has always striven to tell the exact truth even when that might seem to be "unpopular."

(Editorial in Herald.)

MR. CURLEY'S GRAVE ABUSE OF AUTHORITY.

Mayor Curley can blame no one except himself if he finds that sand-bagging tactics have fatally injured, if not really defeated, the success of his plan to raise a fund for bringing outside industries to Boston. The enterprise itself with all it has to commend it gets a staggering blow from the experience of Mr. Allan Forbes, head of the State Street Trust Company. The revelation of the Mayor's standard of action is astounding.

It is an amazing proceeding from any point of view. It is impossible, first of all, to [illegible] that the Mayor expects that he can successfully secure a fund of any size by pursuing methods of this sort. They are too much those of the highwayman. [illegible] tering on any subscription list, even for a worthy project of municipal development, without proper authorization, the [illegible] of firms or individuals [illegible] breach of fairness. When it [illegible] followed by gross abuse of power to punish persons who do not accept an executive order to subscribe to a project set afoot by the Mayor, the action becomes official misconduct.

(Editorial in the Record.)

Mayor Curley's energy in raising a working fund for developing local industry, and attracting new business here, is praiseworthy, and has been favorably commented upon. If he has followed his enthusiasm to the point of threatening to withdraw city deposits from a trust company because the president of that trust company refused to contribute $1,000, after that amount had been set opposite his name without his knowledge or consent, the Mayor treads so close on the heels of blackmail that his whole scheme may fall discredited. The incident renews attention to a lack in Mayor Curley's equipment for public office. He has energy and constructive impulses which are potentially of large worth to the city. A failure to exercise due regard for the ordinary principles of straightforward business will kill most of this possibility. Collection of a development fund promises admirable results. Collection by means of threats promises quick dissolution.

FIAT MONEY.

(Editorial in Traveler.)

Felicitations on the Mayor's success in raising $44,000 at his first business revival meeting were a trifle premature. The congratulations, it appears, were [illegible] about the town before some of the subscribers knew that they had subscribed. However it is a compliment to the condition of one's pocketbook to have the Mayor write him down as a $1,000 prospect. The candidate courageous may become the collector courageous. It remains to be seen how successful he will be in getting the donors to O. K. the subscriptions he made for them.

Corporation to Pay Siegel Bank Debt

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Depositors of the failed bank of Henry Siegel & Co. have been notified of the formation of a corporation to take charge of the immediate distribution of a partial cash payment. This company, known as the Depositors' Realization Corporation, has been incorporated in Albany with a capital stock of $500,000. Of this $450,000 was contributed by friends and relatives of Henry Siegel and Frank E. Vogel for the immediate relief of the depositors. That sum would mean a repayment of about 18 cents on the dollar.

A CHILD DOESN'T LAUGH AND PLAY

If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs"; then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't be fooled!

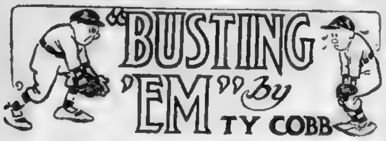
WORK AGAINST PILGRIMS



"BUSTING 'EM" by TY COBB

Of course, I have never batted against Christy Mathewson, but I have seen him pitch frequently, and he is one grand performer. In the last two world's series he gave some wonderful exhibition of pitching and nerve with his team crumbling and throwing him down behind him.

It [illegible] say that [illegible] ninety [illegible] would have been broken under [illegible] keeps right on working.

The [illegible] world's series [illegible] against Plank in the second game in Philadelphia was nothing short of marvelous, and probably the best single piece of pitching I have ever seen. With three men on the bases, and none out [illegible] and with just one run needed by the Athletics to win, he kept [illegible] clean.

[illegible] in four straight games, because all the rest of McGraw's infielders were up in the air at the time.

Matty is probably the greatest [illegible] pitcher that ever lived, but [illegible] Johnson is the greatest pitcher [illegible] [illegible] king.

Ed Walsh's "Near Balk" Fools the Wise Ones.

[illegible] pitchers have a good [illegible] first base to hold up runners, because, if your opponents [illegible] to run wild on [illegible] will have a tough [illegible].

As I have said there is only one [illegible] star in the American League who [illegible] he covers up his weak[illegible] the [illegible] strength of the Athletics also helps him to [illegible] it.

He is a [illegible] hander of course and faces first [illegible] watch the base runners. [illegible] spite of his [illegible] throw to the bag.

Many pitchers have spent years developing a good move to first base to hold up runners, and this one thing has kept several men in fast company after they did not have [illegible].

Walsh, Mathewson, Bender, Rucker, [illegible] stars, in fact, have good [illegible] "Ed" Walsh has one of the [illegible] the American league move that has nipped many a runner [illegible] balk that [illegible] umpires to [illegible].

[illegible] an action that in most men is a sure sign they are going to deliver the ball to the batter, and then he swings and drives it to first base. He has caught many a runner [illegible] out it is that this move would not [illegible] a poor base runner who does not have sense enough to look for the [illegible].

The stars, wise in their profession, do not tip off a base runner when they are going to pitch, because the smart player is always looking for some little sign made unconsciously.

A good many pitchers have a knee move. Frank Smith, formerly of the White Sox, always looked toward [illegible] a safe [illegible] start.

Some Good Ones in the Minors.

Many pitchers [illegible] moves are to be found because [illegible] accompa[illegible] [illegible] to first that are half balks [illegible].

These left handers [illegible] to pitch [illegible] first base. That old story [illegible] [illegible] knee which cost him [illegible] game. Of course when a base runner discovers some slight move [illegible] pitcher that tips him off [illegible] to pitch [illegible] edge [illegible] bers of his own team.

Managers, and the pitchers themselves, are always watching for some move that is tipping base runners off. McGraw finally broke Drucke of this bad habit, but they say he felt uncomfortable without it, and that it hurt his pitching.

Abuse and Kidding Doesn't "Get" the Veterans.

The old type of coaching, the abusive and kidding sort that was intended to worry a pitcher, has largely passed out of baseball, except in the case of an occasional youngster who may be worried by it. Matty was telling [illegible] game he won in the [illegible] series that some of the [illegible] players on the bench were [illegible] worry Plank by yelling at him things as

"What are you doing out there pitching,—a [illegible] like you?"

"I jumped on those fellows," said Matty. "'Don't try that on an old bird like Plank,' I told them. 'You might go after some young fellow, but he eats that stuff.'"

As I have said, it is hard to [illegible] pitchers. "Tom" Hughes could throw his glove into the box and beat Cleveland nearly any time when he was in the league, while all the rest of the clubs would [illegible] [illegible] Detroit [illegible] Matty [illegible] to win from Chicago [illegible] [illegible] superstitious [illegible] in spite of [illegible] the players on the [illegible] But there is one [illegible] against all of [illegible] Walter Johnson.

My [illegible] world's series [illegible] there would be [illegible] pitch every day if necessary. He is the greatest pitcher alive.

"Pop" Anderson's Famous Steal.

If you will back-track for enough [illegible] when the [illegible] had a chance for the pennant. Yes, it is true. It is almost impossible to believe but such is the case and it was in that moss-grown period that this incident occurred.

There was at this time a first baseman on the St. Louis club known as "Pop" Anderson. He was of now obsolete type. He disappeared with Jake Beckley and Dan Brouthers, et al., when the squeeze play and the hit-and-run from second base began to be the fashion in baseball.

[illegible] a coast defence craft than a scout cruiser. As a mental giant he stacked up marvelously when it came to keeping accurate tabs on those who had borrowed [illegible] to buy a box of cigarettes, but, though there were not many of these, most of his intellect was devoted to this exercise at all times.

[illegible] York [illegible] Anderson on first base with a dangerous hitter at bat. It is understood that at this time a teammate owed Anderson a quarter, and this may have had something to do with the frenzy that seized him. It had also been years since he had stolen a base, which may account for his considering this an opportunity.

Dooin has quit the stage in order to stop the raids being made by the Feds upon his Philadelphia club. Thus the Feds have already accomplished something for the good of humanity.

Now if the Feds could in some [illegible] Marquard and Blossom Seeley to retire from the limelight we would hail the new league as a life-saver.

Somehow we have a hunch something terrible will happen to one club in the two big leagues [illegible]. This is the 13th, and the [illegible] consider it a lucky day.

Entries Pouring in for B. C. School Meet

The big interscholastic indoor meet to be held under the auspices of the Boston College Athletic Association in the old College Gym on James street, February 20, is bringing in many entries.

The meet is of special interest to schoolboy followers, since it occurs shortly before the B. A. A. meet and will give the followers a chance to pick possible winners of interscholastic titles.

The list of open events include: 25-yard dash (scratch), 600-yard run (handicap 15-yard limit), 1,000-yard run (scratch), 300-yard run (10-yard limit), one mile run (scratch) and running high jump (scratch). Special events and team races are to be arranged. Entries close this week with Irving J. Heath, graduate manager of athletics at Boston College and with Manager John Murray of B C H.

Yale Crews Begin Work Under Nickalls

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Feb. 13.—With the arrival in this city today of Guy Nickalls, to begin active work with the Yale crew candidates, a conference of the coaches and Captain Denegre is expected to be held at which, it is understood, the variation of the "Bob" Cook stroke, in which the Yale oarsmen are to be drilled this season, will be determined upon.

Says Harvard Crew Has "Cold Feet"

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 13.—Vivian Nickalls, coach of the University of Pennsylvania oarsmen, sharply criticised Harvard's sportsmanship, when he learned Harvard had refused to compete with Penn the proposed three-cornered race with Annapolis on the Severn.

"It is a case of cold feet on Harvard's part," he declared. "I am astonished that such discourtesy exists in American intercollegiate sports."

Clabby Wins Award Over Petroskey

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 13.—Jimmy Clabby, the Hammond, Ind., middleweight, was given the decision over "Sailor" Petroskey of San Francisco, at the conclusion of their 20-round bout, at Vernon. Clabby seemed to have the sailor a trifle distressed in the twentieth.

Checker Stars Begin Play Here Feb. 23

The annual convention of checker players of New England will be held in the American House, February 23. The usual Washington Birthday match between Boston and all New England will take place on this occasion. This contest will bring together on each side upwards of 200 players. On the Boston team will be Parrow, McDonald, Heffner, Morrall, Pigeon, Waterhouse, Kiley and other noted experts. Simeon Crumb of Boston will captain the Hub team. The New England team will be captained by George Nyquist of Lynn, and will have Hill, Holden, Peck, Evans, Mann, McClellan and others who have distinguished themselves in former contests.

Another feature will be a tournament for a purse put up by Melvin Brown of Brooklyn, N. Y. In this tourney some of the best players in the United States will compete. Morrall, ex-English champion; Pigeon, Parrow, McDonald, Waterhouse, Kiley and Levine of Boston; Finn of North Reading, Maybery and McClellan of Lynn; Darling of Rhode Island, Evans of Connecticut, and Hill and Holden of Lawrence, will be among the contestants.

Another "Milton A. C." in It.

John W. DeBruyn, manager of the Milton A. C., today said that the basketball team which played Company M at Milford, Saturday night, when the game was broken up by rough play, was not the well-known Milton A. C. team but some other team that used the name. Last Saturday night the Milton A. C. played the Cunningham Gym team at Milton.

JOHNNY COULON TO ENGAGE IN GOTHAM BOUT

By JACK CONWAY.

JOHNNY COULON is one young man who is not worrying over the threatened baseball war between the Federal League and the dear old organized crowd who are promoting the national game merely for the good of their health if we are to believe their own statements. The Chicago boy would not even get excited if "Chubby" Charley Murphy should fire the rest of the Cubs like he did Johnny Evers.

The bantamweight "champion" is a great lover of baseball, but just now he has greater troubles than those with which Messrs. Evers, Sweeney, Purdue and Company have to contend with.

True Evers is not certain where he will play ball this year, but as he will probably increase his bankroll as a result of the present mixup, he should worry.

Coulon's case is more serious. He must fight. Yes, gentle reader, Johnny must again don the padded gloves and defend the title he never won. 'Tis, indeed, a sad state of affairs.

COULON recently injured one of his hands in a bout with "Young" Sinnett at Racine, Wis., but he is well again and has signed to box in New York. Therefore he will have a hard time avoiding meeting "Kid" Williams, who is one of the best bantamweights in our midst.

Coulon does not want to battle Williams, but he may be forced to do so. If Coulon enters a ring with Williams, he will have to fight, and believe us when we say that a Coulon-Williams bout will never take place if Chicago's esteemed citizen can prevent it.

BILLY GLOVER, the South Boston welterweight, was today matched to clash with Dave Kurtz of New York in a twelve-round bout to be staged in Manchester, N. H., on February 24. Glover recently outpointed Joe Nelson before the Unity Club in Lawrence and believes he will not experience much difficulty in winning from Kurtz.

GEORGES CHARPENTIER, the twenty-year-old French heavyweight, wisely refused to meet Sam Langford. Charpentier is one of the most promising "white hopes" in the world, and with a little more experience he will not have reason to fear any of the leading men in his boxing division.

TAYLOR SAYS 'FEDS' MAY GO TO BROOKLYN

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

John I Taylor, vice-president of the Boston American League Club, returned home today with interesting news and gossip of the big baseball meeting in New York.

"What brought the Federal League promoters on that hurried trip from Chicago to New York," said Mr. Taylor, "was to secure Washington Park, Brooklyn, for one of the Federal League clubs."

"This property is in the hands of an estate and some time ago it was reported that the 'Feds' were after it. The agent of the estate was not particularly anxious to let the 'Feds' have it, but about that time President Ebbets, of the Brooklyn National League Club, made the crack that he would have a street run through the property if the 'Feds' undertook to lease the park.

"FEDS" CAN HAVE IT CHEAP.

"This made the agent sore and he started negotiations with the Federal League promoters with the result that it looks as though they had got the park and would establish a club there.

"I heard from a man who knows all about the deal that the agent of the property has agreed to let the 'Feds' have it for a nominal rent—just about enough to cover the taxes, with the understanding that if the 'Feds' make a go of it, they will later sign a lease at a reasonable figure.

"The impression among the best informed baseball men at the New York meeting in regard to the 'Feds' was that they would start the season with six clubs—that is, that was the feeling up to the time before the 'outlaws' secured Washington Park.

"Under the new arrangement it looks as though they would have to start with eight clubs or drop Buffalo, where they do not seem to have made much headway.

BROOKLYN TO REPLACE TORONTO

"The scheme, of course, is to put Brooklyn on the Federal League map in place of Toronto, where little has been done by the 'Fed' promoters. President McCaffrey of the Toronto International League club told me that the 'Feds' had done absolutely nothing.

"A close friend of Charlie Weeghman, the Chicago Federal League man, told me that the ideas of the Federal Leaguers were absolutely crazy. They were believing everything they were told about baseball affairs.

"To show how they have been fooled only one instance is necessary. Weeghman informed a friend of his that last year the Indianapolis club opened the season to a crowd of 10,000. The friend offered to bet Weeghman $5,000 that less than half that number saw the opening. 'Well,' replied Weeghman, 'all I know is what I have been told.'

JACK DUNN IS WORRIED.

"One or two of the big league magnates feel a bit worried," continued Mr. Taylor, "but the majority believe that the 'Feds' will kill themselves off. Jack Dunn, owner of the Baltimore club, is among those who are worried, because, he says, the 'Feds' are saying they will put a major league club in Baltimore. I told Dunn that calling a club a major league club doesn't make it one, and that the public would soon see that the 'Feds' had no better club than his own, if as good.

"It is true that there is a movement on foot to drive Murphy of Chicago out of baseball, but how it can be accomplished remains to be seen. Not only the owners of American League clubs, but the owners of National League clubs (Murphy's own organization) are heartily sick of him and want to get rid of him the worst way.

"The minor leaguers and the baseball reporters from all the big league cities agree that he is a menace to the game and should be eliminated. What they will do to squelch him, however, is something I can't figure out.

"Ban Johnson is absolutely serene over the Federal League situation. He believes the 'outlaws' will beat themselves, and I feel that way myself. One wise move the 'Feds' had in mind—the best one they had, in my opinion—was to keep away from the Giants and Athletics and raid the teams that looked as though they might give these two teams a fight in their respective leagues.

"The object, of course, was to make a runaway race in the two big leagues and kill off public interest in them. The idea is good, but I don't think they have made much headway at it.

"I heard in New York that the 'Feds' had offered Evers as much money for three years as he would be able to make in four years in the National League. They are hot after Evers, but I am inclined to think he will stick to organized baseball."

FEDERALS WILL HAVE A TEAM IN GREATER NEW YORK THIS YEAR

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—The big sensation which the Federal League's leaders promised they would hurl at organized baseball cropped out today.

Greater New York will be represented in the Federal League this year. The team in the greater city will take the place of Toronto, which has been dropped. Federal Leaguers have two sites under consideration, one in Brooklyn and the other in Manhattan.

Later the decision will be made as to whether a team will be located on Manhattan to buck the Yankees and Giants, or in Brooklyn to fight Ebbets' club. The "outlaw" organization has interested capital to the extent of $[illegible] in the venture in Greater New York.

This information came directly from one of the leading managers of the new league.

WHY LOVERS AREN'T HUNGRY

A solemn German psychologist gives a novel and very sensible explanation of the reason why falling in love makes you lose your appetite.

IN SUNDAY'S AMERICAN.

JOHNNY EVERS WILL DECIDE IN 24 HOURS

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—The report circulated around baseball circles early today that Johnny Evers had been signed up by the Federals was denied by Evers and Joe Tinker, manager of the Chicago "Feds."

"I promised Gerry Herrmann that I would keep clear until today and I intend to keep my promise," said Evers.

"I have not signed up my old teammate for the Federals. It is up to Evers whether he wants to join us or not," said Tinker.

It was also announced that if President Gaffney of the Boston Braves signs up Evers, Sweeney and Perdue will probably star in Boston.

LAWYERS EXAMINE CONTRACT.

The status of John Evers will be established within twenty-four hours, President James A. Gilmore of the Federal League said today. He stated that Evers' contract with the Cubs is expected to be in the hands of lawyers here within that time and that an opinion will at once be given as to whether player is "legally free" to join any club he chooses.

President Gilmore said that the Federals are dead anxious to get Evers and will pay him $10,000 to bind the bargain the minute it is found that he "legally free." Evers, himself, seemed undecided today whether he would join the Federals or go with the Boston Nationals. The former Cub manager declared he would do nothing which would benefit Murphy and this gave rise to the following report.

If Evers goes to Boston, Owner James E. Gaffney of the Boston club will turn a check for $25,000 over to Charles W. Murphy. Murphy, in the meantime, is expected to be fined that amount by the National Commission because of his undiplomatic conduct. Murphy is then to turn the check over at a time which would preclude the possibility of his benefitting personally by the deal. This scheme suits every one except Murphy, who says he won't abide by it. The money would reimburse the National League for guaranteeing Evers' contract, which Murphy abrogated.

FEDERALS WILL HAVE 200 MEN.

President Gilmore painted a brilliant future for the Federal League today.

"We will have 200 or more first class players under contract by the opening of the season," said he. "That will give at least twenty-five men to each club. Most of our youngsters are 'comers.'

"Before the year is out we will be in a position to wreck the minor leagues of the country.

"These leagues make their money by selling players and with our backing we will be able to give bonuses to players, which the National and American Leagues cannot give and get our choice. We don't expect to make any money this year, but we are prepared to lose.

"We are not going into organized baseball unless organized baseball comes to us. They must give us our terms."

Judge Harry Goldman, one of the Federal League backers from Baltimore, and Joe Tinker today called upon David Fultz, president of the Players' Fraternity, to inquire about Mr. Fultz's reported declaration that all big league players who flop to the Federal League would be blacklisted by the fraternity. "I never said it," said Fultz.

Sidelights on Sports

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

NOT openly, but under the surface, there is a movement on foot to drive Charles Webb Murphy, baseball's trouble maker, from the National game.

Murphy declares he is in baseball until the last gun fires and will not be driven out. He says he is for Charles Webb Murphy first, the Chicago National League Club second, and as far as the National League is concerned he doesn't care what happens to it one way or the other.

MURPHY is known as the shoestring millionaire. He entered baseball a few years on borrowed money and made a fortune out of it. Ever since he became owner of the Chicago National League team he has been a trouble-maker, a discordant note in baseball harmony and in his own town, Chicago, he has disgusted the baseball public with the way he does business. His treatment of Frank Chance and Mordecai Brown and the recent firing of Johnny Evers are instances.

But how can Murphy be driven from baseball?

You cannot take his club away from him. He owns 53 per cent of the club's stock, and if he won't sell there's no way to force him to sell.

No One Who Is Unfitted to Look on the Bright Side Should Be Permitted to Marry

THE AMERICAN'S MAGAZINE PAGE

When Love Umpires

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A YOUNG man from a little country town dips his pen-point in the well springs of Hope, and writes me:

"I am twenty-three years of age, and deeply in love with a girl in a nearby city. I am a baseball player of some ability, getting $20 a week in the baseball season. Would you advise me to marry now, or wait till I get in the National League?"

While marriage on only $20 a week only during the baseball season would be extremely perilous, and altogether inadvisable, still I cannot urge you to wait until you are in the National League. I would like to see happiness make a home run to more than one woman in ten thousand, and that is the proportion of the feminine population of the world that would enjoy that experience if all men waited till they had reached the National League of their ambition before marrying.

The brakeman with his eyes fixed on the private car of the railroad president; the bank clerk who wants some day to be the head of his bank; the theological student who wants to be bishop, and every coroner in the world who regards his office as a stepping stone to the White House, would every mother's son of them send some woman unwed to her grave if proposal of marriage rested on the fulfillment of ambition. There would be no "climbing the hill together," but every man would reach the summit alone, or spend his existence in a lonely and hopeless struggle at the foot. And the few—tragically few compared with the number of your size of hope—who reach the top will not turn back to marry the girl who has grown old and plain waiting for them, but will pick out some pink and white baby of sixteen who would make a prettier background for the expenditure of their wealth.

Your batting average may be good on the diamond, but it is not good in the field of hard practical sense. If it were, you would realize how few men get "to the top" in baseball, and that there is nothing there worth while when the summit is reached. What good has your idol in the National League, or any other league, done for humanity? What good has he done for himself?

Hope is making a goose of you. Hope is causing you to dream when you should be on your feet, working, studying, wide awake. Hope makes merry helping the young build their castles in Spain, and is never so alluring and deceiving as when building with one as blind as you are to your opportunities and limitations.

Give up the National League, but don't give up the girl. Direct your ambition to a more useful field. Raise your batting average, young man, and don't try to raise it with your arm.

Raise it with your head!

Up-to-Date Jokes

While waiting between trains at a country town a traveler walked into the village cemetery. He saw a monument, one of the largest in the cemetery, and read with surprise the inscription on it: "A Lawyer and an Honest Man."

He looked at the monument again. Then he walked all around it and examined the grave closely. Another man in the cemetery approached and asked him:

"Have you found the grave of an old friend?"

"No; but I was wondering how they came to bury those two fellows in one grave."

A barrister was once escorting some ladies round the courts in Manchester, England, during the luncheon hour. In the corridor they came on a pile of antique spears, the harmless but ponderous weapons of the javelin men, piled in a corner outside the Judge's door.

"These, my dear lady," said he, "are used by the Judge in the Crown Court when he charges the Grand Jury."

Bashful Bob

The Laughable Adventures of
Young-Man-Afraid-of-the-Girls

By STELLA FLORES

Copyright, 1914, by International News Service.

No. 1—Out of the Frying Pan Into the Fire

HE was called a woman-hater. As a matter of fact, nothing could be further from the truth. Bob thought that girls were wonderful, but he was wretchedly bashful. All the attractions in the world could not recompense him for his misery when a pair of bright eyes mocked him, or a soft voice railed at his blushes. So when Colonel Robson appeared at the door one morning to ask him to drive to the station to meet his daughter, Bob looked appealingly at his mother.

"I'd go myself," said the Colonel, "but I've promised to take a party of people skiing."

Looking at the Colonel primly, although her eyes twinkled, Bob's mother suggested that he take the party and let the Colonel go for his daughter himself. For a moment the old gentleman hesitated. Then a grin spread over his features.

"Very well," he acquiesced, "I guess Bob will fill the bill."

Half an hour later, with a whoop and a flying leap, Bob landed in the camp where the Colonel had directed him. Then he stood petrified. The "party" was none other than a party of girls—one—two—three—and still more of them coming out of a tent. Bob decided to see the Colonel later.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

LET HIM DECIDE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

We are two very attractive young girls and have many admirers, but both of us seem to be infatuated with the same young man. He is very bashful and shy, and for that reason we cannot tell which of us he loves the more. ANXIOUS.

THAT is something he alone knows, and the fact that he is impartial in his attentions indicates that his love for both is the same. When he learns his own heart he will make the discovery known, and there is nothing you can do to hasten the discovery.

TRY NOT TO

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am sixteen and in love with a young man four years my senior. I've never gone out with this young man, and I would like to. There is one thing that hinders me, and that is my mother. She does not allow me to go out at such an early age. We both love each other dearly. Would you please advise me whether I should continue thinking of him. F. K. M.

THOUGHTS are sometimes hard to control, but I hope you will try to think of him less.

Your mother is right, and you are so young you will think you are in love many times before you really are.

CERTAINLY NOT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Is it proper for a man to ask a girl for a soul kiss the first time he met her?

I told him I am not that kind of a girl and would rather give up his company. W. C.

YOU are very sensible. It is never proper for a man to ask a woman for a soul kiss, no matter how long he has known her. The "soul kiss" is indecent.

Please don't see him again; he is not good enough for you.

TELL YOUR FATHER

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A gentleman friend calls at the house every night in the week. If he happens to see me talking to another man he pulls me away from him. He has a very jealous disposition. He claims he loves me, but I only care for him as a friend. I have told him several times to keep away, but he does not listen to me. DAISY.

HIS possessive attitude toward you not only is distasteful to you, but will cause unpleasant comments from others. Stay in your room rather than see him. If that does not cure him, tell your father or your brother.

Dancing

The Brazilian Maxixe and Other New Dances Described by Adelaide, of the New York Jardin de Danse

By ADELAIDE

Copyright, 1914, by International News Service.

THE Brazilian maxixe, what is it? It is a dance evolved from the languorous life of warm climates, sunny skies and temperamental, slowly rhythmical music. Like the tango, it is an adaptation, merely that, nothing more, for the tango in the original could never be danced here; it has been so modified from the original Argentine movement danced to the tinkle of the castanets and with all the abandon of the race in its interpretation that save for the name the tango would hardly be recognized abroad.

ADELAIDE AND HUGHES

The Brazilian maxixe is adaptable—that is, the dancers having at their command a fair amount of suppleness may learn the steps to exactness and reproduce to some extent the wonderful grace of the body and arms in the maxixe movement. The entire movement may be roughly divided into four parts, but as the third movement is an exact repetition of the first and second, perhaps it would be better to outline the steps under three main divisions.

On the first count of the music the man slides his left foot forward draws his right foot near from the left, sliding immediately the left foot forward again, and bending the right knee. The girl does the same backward. This is really a double movement forward with the left foot, with a slight bend of the right knee bringing the right foot off the floor.

On the second count the man touches the floor slightly with the point of his right foot and bends the body slightly backward, and then points his foot in the opposite direction, backward, in the meantime bending the body forward. That means that the movements of the feet and body are directly opposite. This contrary movement is in itself the most beautiful thing in the dance. At the same time the girl bends her body forward, then backward.

The third and fourth counts of the first movement are a repetition of the same thing, the steps of the first and second counts only beginning with the other foot and reversing the body movements.

Thus it can be seen that there is nothing at all difficult about this first movement. The hardest thing about the dance lies in the swaying grace of the body; the steps in themselves are very simple—it is suppleness and agility that must be attained.

Snap-Shots

The poetry of earth is never dead:
When all the birds are faint with the hot sun
And hide in cooling trees, a voice will run
From hedge to hedge above the new mown mead.
That is the grasshopper's—he takes the lead
In Summer luxury—he has never done
With his delights, for, when tired out with fun
He rests at ease beneath some pleasant weed.
The poetry of earth is ceasing never.
On a lone Winter evening, when the frost
Has wrought a silence, from the stars there shrills
The cricket's song, in warmth increasing ever,
And seems to one in drowsiness half lost,
The grasshopper's among some grassy hills.
—JOHN KEATS.

"I HAVE heard so awful [illegible] of growling about the hard times we are having," said the Manicure Lady, "and I don't know how it has affected the other great industries, but it certainly has got the manicure game on the bummer. "Then what are you [illegible]," asked the Head Barber.

"I suppose I have a right to [illegible] quite a little if I want to," said the Manicure Lady. "[illegible] there is plenty of time on my hands to talk and nobody [illegible] to listen. I often think how [illegible] ing the really poor people [illegible] George. I was reading a grand [illegible] last night. I don't know who wrote it, but it was some big leaguer, all right. "[illegible] the way they are [illegible] you might as well go in the [illegible]," said the Head Barber. "What in the world is the matter with all your customers? You used [illegible] a day."

"The trouble with my customers, I [illegible]," said the Manicure Lady, "is [illegible] government [illegible] everywhere. Tabloid Fables

WHY, Mother, do the men regard solitaire as such a poor game?

For the reason, My Child, that when a man plays cards he wants a partner on whom he can place the blame.

What, Mother, does it mean to say that "Every man's house is his castle?"

It was inspired, My Child, by the impression which every man gives that he is in a dungeon when he is there.

Why, Mother, is that called a "home-like" church?

Why, Mother, does Mr. Jinks carry himself so erect and look so much younger?

Some one, Child, has just paid him a compliment, and when an old man is paid a compliment it always takes effect immediately.

Does a man, Mother, ever long to be a woman?

On only one occasion, Daughter. When a woman abuses him he wishes he were a woman so that he could talk back.

What, Mother, is meant by "working the growler?"

In prohibition towns, Little One, it means running into a joint for a bucket of beer, but its wider and more fitting meaning is getting money out of father.

When a man sits by himself in a deep study and smiles, is it possible to tell, Mother, at what he is smiling?

No one knows, Daughter, but it is pretty safe to bet that he is not smiling at the thoughts of the crown he will get when he reaches heaven.

What, Mother, is the difference between the knight of old and the lover of today?

The knight of old, Little One, risked his life to gather a flower growing [illegible] a precipice that he might give to his lady fair. The lover of today gets his flowers at the greenhouse and charges them to his father.

Why is it, Mother Mine, that with so many drawers in bureaus and chiffoniers in the house every man is limited to only one drawer in which to keep his clothes?

Because, My Child, this limits him to only one place in the house where he is unable to find what he is looking for. No woman could keep a neat looking house if her husband had the run of it.

Why, Mother, does Mr. Jinks feel warranted in spending ten dollars so foolishly?

Because, My Child, he found a five-dollar bill and wants to celebrate.

—FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

LINES HIS POCKET WITH YOUR SKIN

That Is What an Unscrupulous Dealer Does If He Succeeds in Selling You a Substitute for Resinol.

Over eighteen years of constant use by physicians and public has shown that Resinol stops itching instantly, and quickly heals tormenting, unsightly skin eruptions. We have thousands of unsolicited testimonials that prove it.

Most druggists are only too glad to sell Resinol to their customers because they know that it will give satisfaction. But a few unscrupulous dealers offer, in its place, ointments which resemble Resinol closely enough in name or appearance to deceive the unwary.

They claim these are "just the same as Resinol" or "just as good as Resinol." But they are NOT. They are crude imitations, often cheaply made and of little or no healing power. The dishonest dealer wants to sell these imitations instead of Resinol because HE can make a few cents more profit and not because they will do your skin any good.

We publish this to warn our customers, many of whom write that they have been deceived by imitations of Resinol. If anyone tries this trick on you, insist on seeing a jar of genuine Resinol also. Compare the two ointments and decide for yourself if the "substitute" is "just the same as Resinol." Resinol is never sold in bulk, only in opal jars with the name blown in the bottom. Each jar comes in a blue carton which it is unlawful to imitate. Price 50c and $1. For trial size, free, write to Dept. 42-R, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

To Put On Flesh And Increase Weight

A Physician's Advice.

Most thin people eat from four to six pounds of good solid fat-making food every day and still do not increase in weight one ounce, while on the other hand many of the plump, chubby folks eat very lightly and keep gaining all the time. It's all bosh to say that this is the nature of the individual. It isn't Nature's way at all.

Thin folks stay thin because their powers of assimilation are defective. They just absorb enough of the food they eat to maintain life and a semblance of health and strength. Stuffing won't help them. A dozen meals a day won't make them gain a single [illegible] pound. All the fat-producing elements of their food just stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste. What such people need is something that will prepare these fatty food elements so that their blood can absorb them and deposit them all about the body—something, too, that will multiply their red blood corpuscles and increase their blood's carrying power.

For such a condition I always recommend eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is not, as some believe, a patented drug, but is a scientific combination of six of the most effective and powerful flesh-building elements known to chemistry. It is absolutely harmless, yet wonderfully effective, and a single tablet eaten with each meal often has the effect of increasing the weight of a thin man or woman from three to five pounds a week. Sargol is sold by good druggists everywhere on a positive guarantee of weight increase or money back.

FORBES TALKS ON CRITICISM OF CAPITAL

By B. C. FORBES, Business Editor.

Why is it that we worship money yet damn those who have it?

* * *

We want to get riches, but we despise the rich, do we not?

* * *

How do you account for this?

* * *

Is the too-prevalent hostility to capitalists born of envy? Does our own failure to win coveted wealth embitter us against those who have suceeded?

* * *

Is there not danger of carrying anti-capital feeling too far?

* * *

The head of an old-established international banking firm of the highest standing here and abroad told me the other day that the constant agitation in this country against the rich is driving numbers of very wealthy Americans to Europe.

* * *

"Some of my friends," he remarked, "find they can enjoy life more in Paris, Berlin or other parts of the Continent, and also in England, than in this country. They are not subjected to perpetual criticism abroad. They are respected and, of course, their money is welcomed.

"Can you blame them for living where they find life most congenial?

"The movement, of course, is not good for this country, as it means withdrawing large sums from us every year.

"I understand, however, that quite a number of wealthy Americans are preparing to join the American colonies in Europe, to take up residence there."

* * *

The rich can take care of themselves, we all know, and few tears will be shed over the plight of those who choose to expatriate themselves.

* * *

Yet, for the sake of the country, for the sake of our own prosperity, for the sake of business, might it not be well to give the subject here raised calm study?

* * *

In other lands rich people are not execrated. Governments, politicians, newspapers and labor leaders do not constantly criticise and harass them. A steady stream of abuse is not poured upon them.

Will the explanation be offered that that is because the rich people of other nations made their money more honestly than ours? Such an assertion would not be flattering to our laws or our business ethics.

* * *

Nobody will accuse me of toadying to the rich or of having been behindhand in urging reforms calculated to bring corporations and capitalists under reasonable control and to punish individual wrongdoers instead of corporations.

* * *

May I venture, therefore, to ask these questions and invite consideration of them:

Has the time not arrived to ponder well whether we may not injure the country and its whole industrial structure if we do not modify our anti-capital attitude and seek reforms to insure future welldoing rather than revenge for past deeds that, in the light of current advanced ideas, now appear misdeeds?

* * *

Is it not time to reflect that men who have honestly provided employment for large bodies of workers are worth much to a country?

Should we not temper our hostility to the rich if their riches are the sole objection we have to them?

* * *

A young country needs capital and—under our present order of things—needs capitalists. We also need corporations. We need big corporations.

* * *

To foster ill-will toward men who have made their mark in commerce of any description—provided they made it by fair means—is wrong. The effect upon the mind of able, ambitious youths is poisonous. It tends to restrain enterprise. It engenders class-versus-mass bitterness. It is not fair play.

INSECT SWATTING EXTRAORDINARY

How Health and Contentment Were Transplanted to a Fever-Infested Land.

Two noxious varieties of mosquitoes did more to retard the early work on the Panama canal than the almost insurmountable engineering problems which constantly arose to puzzle and discourage the brave men who were actively engaged in the work.

Malaria and yellow fever decimated the ranks of the workers. The bad reports regarding the health risks at the isthmus made it more and more difficult to persuade outside labor to journey to the scene of operations, even under extraordinary wage inducements.

Modern scientific methods, after tracing these fevers to infected mosquitoes, quickly attacked the root of the danger, and in a short time wiped out the stagnant breeding pools and the disease carriers which they turned out in millions. This work was costly, but it paid to do it. Without labor in abundance the canal could never have been finished. Since the elimination of the greatest drawback—deadly fevers—the work was rushed to completion by an army of willing and contented laborers of the best class.

"Panama and the Canal in Picture and Prose" treats fully all the problems of construction, besides all other matters of interest relating to this stupendous undertaking. This book tells all about Panama, its history and people.

LATEST STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were firm upon a higher level this afternoon, gains having been well maintained in markets where business was slow. Price changes averaged small. There was little initiative on either side. Rock Islands continued weak, but other issues which declined did not recede far.

Among the advances in New York were Canadian Pacific ¾, Southern Pacific ⅝, Reading ¼, American Telephone ⅝, Western Union ⅜, American Can ⅛, Steel ⅞, Amalgamated ½, American Smelting ¼, Northern Pacific ⅞, Baltimore & Ohio ½, and Union Pacific ⅝. Rock Island common was off 1⅛ and preferred 1⅝, the former selling below 7. Lehigh Valley was down ½ and New Haven ⅜.

In Boston the list was irregular and the tone less firm than in New York. Boston & Maine was off 1 and New Haven ⅜, while United Fruit was half a point lower. American Telephone had advanced ⅜. Calumet & Arizona, Granby and North Butte were coppers to show fractional gains.

PRICES UP AT OPENING.

Prices were higher in New York when that market reopened after a holiday, the market following the London lead where trading in internationals was dull yesterday, but Americans averaged higher. Sentiment there was favorably affected by the rise in consols, and a higher price for those securities was supposed to indicate a more peaceful outlook in regard to home rule for Ireland. Amsterdam is said to be still selling Rock Island, Dutch investors fearing receivership proceedings and remembering the St. Louis & San Francisco road fiasco. Rock Island was lower in London today.

BUSINESS WAS QUIET.

Within a few minutes in New York part of gains were lost, but there was no reaction of consequence during the first hour, and sharp advances featured the last half of the forenoon, Steel, Amalgamated, Reading, Southern Pacific, Western Union and American Telephone making material advances. Rock Islands were under pressure all the morning. There was a good gain for American Ice, based upon the frigid spell which is going to help greatly in filling its storehouses. General Motors rose a couple of points because of the reports in circulation regarding the character of its earnings.

The volume of business was small during the morning, as many traders did not reappear after the holiday, and there was no interest displayed by outsiders. Transactions continued to be most professional, and it seemed as if the short interest was large. Stock offerings were scanty, and the undertone was firm. The money market remained quiet. In the second hour the call rate was as high as 2 per cent.

BEARS MADE AN EFFORT.

Bears made an effort during the morning to start a general decline and Rock Island, New Haven, New York Central and Lehigh Valley were the principal issues put under pressure. But the raid did not have any appreciable effect upon the list in general and after it was found that the market could absorb offerings the attempt to cause a reaction petered out. There was a disposition to buy upon slight recessions and close observers thought they detected signs that important issues were accumulating upon declines.

By noon American Sugar was weak on small transactions, being off 1½ at 107, and Lehigh Valley was down a point, while Rock Island had not recovered. Leaders showed fractional gains. Union Pacific was up nearly a point, Steel sold at 66½ and Canadian Pacific was up a point.

COPPERS WERE STEADY.

Copper issues were steady, Amalgamated, Anaconda, Chino and American Smelting having risen fractionally. They advanced before it became known that domestic consumers had bought copper in large quantities today. Some morning sales were in million-pound lots and the price is said to have been 14⅞ cents a pound. There were orders for the metal cabled from Europe. In fact, it is said that the buying movement which producers have been expected, and for which they have firmly maintained their price through several dull weeks, has begun at last. It was encouraging news for other lines of trade, indicating that the outlook for a revival of manufacturing and general business is good. Copper is a metal entering into so many products that a large demand for it is one of the best signs of an increase in industrial activity.

For the week ending yesterday copper exports totalled 9,824 tons.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

The London copper warrants market was firm this morning and by noon spot was up 8s. 9d. and futures 10s. There was no further change at the close. Sales were small.

Seven out of eight blast furnaces of the United States Steel Corporation at Gary, Ind., are now in operation and the demand for pig iron is increasing.

Gold to the amount of $3,000,000 was shipped form New York to Hayti today.

During 1913 gross profits of the Republic Iron & Steel Company decreased $384,951, but there was a gain of $431,883 in net. Revenues were equal to 12 1-10 per cent. on the preferred stock, against 14 9-10 per cent. in 1912, and 4 9-10 per cent. on the common, against 7¼ per cent.

WOMEN HAVE EQUAL RIGHTS IN SUNSHINE CLUB

Equal rights for women obtain in the AMERICAN'S 1914 Sunshine Club, where all are made welcome regardless of the sex limitations enforced elsewhere, a fact being taken advantage of by a large number of fair optimists. Here are a few of the latest membership applications, telling why they join:

MISS LOUISE H. ROSCOE, Foxboro: "I believe that thoughts are things and that a large number of people thinking rightly and striving to carry their thoughts into action will make the world a more beautiful place to live in than is possible under any other condition."

MISS ROSE L. ELLIS, No. 142 Chestnut street, Chelsea: "I like sunshine in my own life, and am willing to help make the lives of others as bright as my own."

"UNION MEANS STRENGTH."

MISS M. SWEENEY, No. 159 Shawmut avenue, Boston: "Because union means strength, and all should like to share in our coming prosperity."

HENRIETTA VERDO, No. 37 Green street, Concord, N. H.: "Because I hope that your sunshine will penetrate into every city, town and village in the entire country, that all may be prosperous and happy."

MISS FLORENCE LABRIO, No. 329 Anawan street, Fall River: "Because my papa has a good job. We feel prosperous already, and are looking for still more prosperous time."

AMELIA SUMMERVILLE, actress: "Because I love the sunlight, all that it brings us, and all its accomplishments."

MARION GREENWOOD KELLY, No. 29 Winona street, Auburndale: "The sunshine makes the flowers grow, darkness disappear and life one grand, sweet song."

"BELIEVE IN PROSPERITY."

MRS. CARRIE E. DANFORTH, No. 6 Maple avenue, Swampscott: "Because I believe in, and want, more prosperity, more trade, and more money for New England and all its inhabitants."

CATHERYN NUTTALL, No. 119 Pine street, Fall River: "Because I believe that everything in our present stage of existence is for the best, where there is plenty of sunshine for all who seek it."

MRS. CLARA MILLER, No. 73 Dearborn avenue, West Lynn: "I join the Sunshine Club to make sure of being with the great majority, who look on the bright side of life."

H. G. ATWOOD, No. 101 Tremont street: "Sunshine Club methods have given me more business during the last three months than I had for the entire twelve months previous."

MAY E. GLASS, No. 205 Washington street, Lynn: "No dark clouds for me. A kind word and a smile always help one over the rough places."

Find Nawn Boss Not Guilty of Extortion

Adam Kulecza, a former employe of the Nawn Contracting Company, who had been on trial for two days with Edward McDermott, a former foreman, on charges of extorting money from Polanders hired to work under McDermott, was found not guilty and discharged at Judge Chase's direction in the Superior Criminal Court, when all evidence in the case had been finished. Counsel for McDermott then began his argument. The case will go to the jury today.

Mrs. Hutchins Unable to Get Her Fortune

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The third effort of Mrs. Rose Keeling Hutchins, widow of Stilson Hutchins, the millionaire newspaper founder, to obtain funds from the $3,000,000 estate of her husband, who died a year ago, and over which there is litigation, failed today.

"It is a reproach on our laws if a woman situated as she is cannot have a reasonable allowance, considering the size of the estate," said the court.

"Big Bill" Edwards Accused in Suit

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—"Big Bill" Edwards, bachelor, Princeton football star and former commissioner of street cleaning, is one of many notables named today by Joseph Stonebreaker in a suit for divorce against his wife, Constance.

"The list reads like a page from 'Who's Who,'" said Stonebreaker's lawyer. "Besides Edwards it includes a Pittsburgh steel magnate and B. C. Clifford Kline, brother of ex-Mayor Kline."

PHELPS' TALE OF SUFFERINGS HE SAW IN BULGARIA

LONDON, Feb. 13.—A vivid account of the sufferings of the refugees in Bulgaria was given to the AMERICAN correspondent by Edgar Phelps, who has just returned to London after spending two months visiting the afflicted districts on behalf of the various English relief organizations. He said:

"I made the whole round of the country from Petchtora and Philippopolis to Vasiliko. I was hoping to see conditions improving. I regret to say that there is not the slightest indication of any amelioration. On the contrary I found people of all ages and both sexes herded together like cattle, without clothes, without bedding, practically without shelter.

"In almost every place I visited I could easily have dispensed all the money I had with me. My stores quickly disappeared.

"I shudder to think what will happen unless further outside help appears quickly. It is useless to rely on local resources. They are exhausted, with no possibility of helping more until the next harvest.

"These poor, unfortunate victims who have chosen to throw in their lot with the Bulgarians are in the last stages of desperation.

"I pray Heaven the good-hearted people in America may subscribe quickly. We cannot restore people to life when they are dead. Our aid is small. To do good we must work on a larger scale.

"Even the little we have cannot all go for food. Among other necessities at this season are sandals, also locally made strips of wool with which the peasants bind their legs in place of stockings.

"No matter how small, it will be a Christian act for everyone to give something."

Treasurer Mansfield Is Showing the People How to Save Themselves and the State Money by Selling Them Bonds Direct

Frederick W. Mansfield, our new State Treasurer, is making one of the most important experiments which has been tried in recent years by any public official in any State of the Union.

Against the advice of timid friends and business men, he is carrying out the promise which he made before election that he would sell the bonds of the State of Massachusetts directly to the people and not to any banking house, which would in turn compel the people to pay a price greater than the government receives. Thus Mr. Mansfield will eliminate the banker's commissions, which are exceedingly large in these great bond issues.

The experiment is proving successful. The very first day of the announcement of Mr. Mansfield's determination, and before any advertising of the bonds had been done, nearly one-half of the entire amount of the bonds to be issued were subscribed for by the people voluntarily. This was a courageous performance of Mr. Mansfield's duty, because, however clear the course may seem, if everybody about you in whom you have confidence shakes his head, you begin to lose confidence in your own judgment.

The scandalous midnight bond issue of the Cleveland administration, by which the house of J. P. Morgan & Company was enabled to take several million dollars unrighteously from the American people will not soon be forgotten. The Cleveland administration pretended that it could not sell the government bonds itself, and this was the excuse for selling them to Morgan at a price far below their market value. Public indignation was so great at this miserable swindle that the McKinley administration decided that the government would itself sell its own bonds, and had no difficulty whatever in selling them.

Now Massachusetts, under Mr. Mansfield's leadership, proposes the same experiment. It seems absurd that anybody could doubt the success of the undertaking. A State bond is a direct obligation of the State itself. The wealth of the State and the honor of the State are behind every bond. It is infinitely more secure than a deposit in a savings bank or any other kind of a security, and it pays a rate of interest greater than the average rate on a deposit in the savings banks. Of course, those who make a profit from selling bonds are crying that the thing cannot be done. It is an old cry against progress in human affairs, but it is never heeded by a man who has the courage of his convictions.

The importance of this experiment is to be found not only in the money which it will save the State, but in the precedent which it will establish. The time is fast coming in this country when the public will not permit bankers and brokers to underwrite certain kinds of securities issued by the government and by the public service corporations. The relationship between the public service corporations and the bankers which has grown out of the practice of permitting bankers to sell the securities of the public service corporations has proved to be very baleful, both to the corporations and to the public. It tends to give speculative bankers the control of the railroads and other quasi-public corporations, who manage them not for their own good or for the public service, but for the profits in the manipulation of their stocks and bonds. The miserable fate of the Boston & Maine and the New Haven Railroads at the hands of the Morgan-Rockefeller-Wall Street crowd are recent examples of this great evil near at home.

There is no good reason why, under public regulation, the financial condition of a railroad corporation may not be so well known that the necessity of consulting a banker concerning the safety of an investment in any of these enterprises need to continue. The public authorities could give an investor all the facts which any banker knows.

Mr. Mansfield's experiment is notable and should be held to his credit when the time comes for him to render an account of his stewardship.

Questions Answered

L. M. J.—Patrick Henry's immortal speech, in which he used the words "Give me liberty or give me death," was delivered not at Williamsburg but in old St. John's Church, at Richmond, before the assembly of the second Virginian Convention of Delegates, in March, 1775. The famous speech was not written, and as shorthand reporters were somewhat scarce in those days, we have only snatches of the great oration, which immortalized Henry and set the Colonies on fire.

F. L. R.—It is too early as yet to say whether the white man will be able permanently to dwell in the Tropics with safety to his health and to the health and vigor of his descendants. Science has indeed worked wonders in the Panama Zone, but it remains to be proven that science can do for the vast jungles of Asia, Africa and Brazil what it has done for the Isthmus of Panama. Besides, should the great disease carriers be conquered in the regions referred to it remains a question whether the white breed of men could live and thrive under the perpetual heat.

P. C. F.—You are mistaken in thinking that "Gaucho" and "Gringo" mean the same. The Gaucho (now nearly extinct) was the cowboy of the Argentine Pampas, a half-wild fellow, who, dressed in his "poncho," spent his entire time looking after the great droves of cattle that roamed over the South American plains. "Gringo" is a term applied by the South Americans to a North American or Englishman.

E. P. R.—Joseph Bonaparte, who sought a refuge in our country after the close of the second war with England, lived for several weeks in the [illegible] country seat of the Post family, at what is now One Hundred and Twenty-third street, Manhattan. Before leaving the State of New York he settled down on a large tract of land he had acquired in Jefferson County, where he took the unfortunate Annette Savage as his "American wife."

A. R. D.—Nobody knows how old the game of chess is. It undoubtedly originated somewhere in the East. The place of its origin may have been Egypt, or India, or Persia, or China, but it is impossible to be more explicit. The game was brought into Europe by the Arabs when they went over into Spain, and from Spain made its way gradually all over Europe, whence it was brought to the new found lands of the West after the time of Columbus.

The Two Sisters

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

CHAPTER XXX.

"IT'S perfectly wonderful!" exclaimed Caryl for the tenth time within an hour. Her companion relaxed his attention from the road ahead of him long enough to glance at her with a smile of approval. She was good to look at, with her cheeks whipped pink by the wind and her blue eyes sparkling with exhilaration. Harry Somerdyke loved pretty women with the ardor of a connoisseur.

"I am glad you like it, little girl," he answered in a familiar, almost proprietary tone—"in spite of your reluctance to trust yourself to me. Automobiling is good fun, especially when one has a stunningly pretty girl seated beside him."

"I really don't think that I care particularly for the pretty girl," Caryl laughed saucily, with a coquettish toss of her head.

"Well, I am so enthusiastic about her that I shall let the car go to smash while I am looking at her if she doesn't stop making eyes at me," he threatened as he guided the rushing machine over a particularly rough patch of road.

"Isn't going so fast at all dangerous?" queried his companion, but with no trace of anxiety in her voice.

"Fast!" scoffed the driver. "Wait until we get out to a stretch of State road—then I'll show you what this little boat of mine can really do. What's the matter? Frightened?"

"Not when I'm with you," the girl assured him, smilingly happily.

The broad, fresh sweep of air against her face acted like wine upon her spirits. She was daring and gay this afternoon, and said what ever came into her mind. Julia, Delaine, her squalid life in the city, were all forgotten. She felt she could ride on and on and never tire.

She amused herself for some little time after they had passed the "stretch of State road" in watching the handsome face of the man beside her. Could it really be that she, Caryl Marvin, to whom nothing pleasantly exciting had ever happened, was now bowling along in this glorious machine beside this well-groomed clever gentleman who liked her, as she told herself, "for herself alone"? She laughed aloud in enjoyment of the situation. There were both vanity and joy in the laugh, and Somerdyke turned his head.

"Still having a perfectly wonderful time?" he queried.

"I wish I could do this for ever and ever!" the girl breathed.

"And in an hour or two from now you will be pleading with me to hurry so that you won't get home late and thus stir up the wrath of dear sister," he teased.

"I didn't say that I was going to DO this for ever and ever," Caryl corrected him. "I only said I'd LIKE to. We don't do everything we want to in this world—more's the pity!" and she sighed with feigned melancholy.

The car swung into a broad, gravelled driveway at the end of which gleamed the white columns of a hotel.

"It's getting near afternoon tea time—or along in that direction," Somerdyke remarked as he drew up at the hotel entrance. "We'll get a sandwich and something cool to drink, and then we'll go back by another way to that dreary old city in which I see you only once or twice in a long age."

A suave waiter ushered them out of the glare of the sunlight into a shaded, high-ceiled room, and set a small table in front of them.

"A Scotch high-ball for me," ordered Somerdyke. "Will you have a glass of iced tea—or what?"

Caryl hesitated for a moment, then her new sense of independence asserted itself. "I think I'll take the same drink that you do," she announced.

Somerdyke raised his eyebrows in surprise. "Are you sure you can stand high-balls?" he asked. "They're pretty strong."

"Certainly I can!" retorted Caryl, making her facts suit her desires. "I am very fond of them," she added. She did not know just what a high-ball was, but she was determined to appear sophisticated and live up to her reputation as a "sport."

Her companion shrugged his shoulders and laughed. "All right!" he agreed. "You're the judge, you know. Waiter—two high-balls then!"

Caryl was very thirsty. The rapid drive along dusty roads had dried her throat, and now that she was sitting still in the house, she was also very warm. When the sparkling drink in the ice-filled glass was put before her, she took it eagerly, drinking a generous half of it before she set the glass down. She did not find the taste agreeable, but the liquid was deliciously cold. She ate a sandwich, then drained the glass.

"Delicious!" she murmured, as she saw Somerdyke watching her. When, ten minutes later, she arose to follow him from the hotel, she experienced a strange sensation. Her knees felt uncertain and weak, and the house and the veranda through which she passed seemed to be slowly tilting at a sickening angle, and it required a strong effort of her will to enable her to step up into the car.

Once seated there, she felt better, and the wind again cooled her flushed face. She closed her eyes as she sank back luxuriously in the seat.

Several times she heard, as at a great distance, her companion's voice, and roused herself sufficiently to answer him. She was not sleepy, she mused, but the motion and air made her blissfully contented and indifferent to all things. It was fine to sit comfortably in a luxurious seat and let the world slip by. It was not until the car was coasting down a long hill near the city that she volunteered a remark.

"It's been perfectly dear of you to take me today, Mr. Somerdyke," she said slowly. Somehow it was hard for her to pronounce her words plainly.

"Well, I'm glad that you've waked up at last," the man replied with a laugh of relief. "Where shall I take you when we get to Boston?"

"Home, of course," she replied.

"Of course," he said, laughing again, "but I'm not a mind-reader, and you've not given me your address."

She gave it, still speaking very slowly. She had evidently forgotten her desire to keep the knowledge of her living-place from Somerdyke. The man nodded as he heard the address.

"Almost jagged!" he said to himself. "Silly little fool!"

Do Men Shun Marriage Because It's Too Easy?

Women Were Never More Attractive or Intelligent Than Now, but They Lack the Art of Catching a Husband: They Are Too Willing

By DOROTHY DIX

IN a recent interview in a Paris paper, Madame Bernhardt explained what Silas Wegg would call "the decline and fall of matrimony." She said:

"If the customs of my youth were now prevalent and the young people of today were not allowed to mingle so much without hindrance, the marriage returns would rapidly increase."

Same here. The divine Sarah—the wise Sarah—has put her finger on the crux of the whole matter. People don't marry because comradeship has been substituted for love between men and women, and they are contented to be friends instead of husbands and wives.

Women were never as attractive and desirable as they are today. Not even among the ancient Greeks was the percentage of female pulchritude so high as it is now. The cult of the body has become almost a religion among women. So if a man seeks for beauty in a wife he may shut his eyes, and make a grab in the dark in any group of girls, and be sure of getting one who in his grandmother's time would have had all the poets writing sonnets to her eyebrows, and all the beaux fighting duels for her smiles.

Women are also more intelligent than they ever were before, more versatile, more sympathetic, better fitted to be wives and helpmates to men; yet with all of her attractions and accomplishments the modern girl lacks one art in which her grandmother excelled—the art of catching a husband.

And the secret of this art was the art of allure—of toiling a man along—in a word, of making courtship difficult, instead of too easy as it is now.

The chief reason that men show a disinclination to marry may be largely accounted for by the freedom of companionship that prevails between the sexes. In the olden times when the only way a man could enjoy a woman's society was by marrying her, he was in a rush to hustle with her to the altar.

But when custom permits him to monopolize a woman's evenings; when they may spend long days together on the golf links; when they may attend theatres and parties together, and tea and dine in company unchaperoned in restaurants, the man is in no hurry to wed. He has as much of the lady's society as he desires without the necessity of assuming her bills, or giving her a right to lecture him.

The long engagement is a modern invention of man's, not woman's, and it is a handicap that our grandmothers never knew. Nothing that the new status of woman has brought her is so delightful as platonic friendship with man, but we get nothing in this world without paying for it, and the price that women pay for comradeship with men is too often spinsterhood. When it was a case of either lover or nothing, it was generally lover.

Another reason why men are less eager about marrying now than they used to be is that women are too willing. Many things change, but human nature never changes, and the primitive instinct in man is for the chase. The harder a thing is to get, the more he wants it. Women have forgotten this masculine peculiarity, and instead of permitting themselves to be pursued, they have turned around and run after the men with the result that they seldom catch them—for woman, alas, was not built for the chase.

Probably our grandmothers were just as anxious to get married as any girl is now, but they had the gumption to affect a coy and reluctant attitude, and because a man believed that it was difficult to capture the citadel of a maiden's affection, he wooed her with fire, and passion, and energy.

Why Every City Needs Policewomen

By MRS. ALICE STEBBINS WELLS

First policewoman of the country, now leading a nationwide movement to interest all cities in following the example set, three and a half years ago, by Los Angeles.

THE policewoman has come—and come to stay. It is not her purpose to displace men, but to supplement their work.

The policewoman movement in this country is an added expression of the protective spirit manifesting itself toward the women and children of our cities.

Because of our present economic conditions, women and children have been pushed out of the home into the great industrial world. The business world is no longer "man's world." And a man-made police department, once fairly able to meet the situation, must now be composed of both men and women if it is to handle with propriety and justice a public composed of men, women and children.

The police department represents the great peace army, and its primary duty is to prevent crime. The appointment of women means an added emphasis upon the preventive side of police work. It is woman's natural work to care for and protect the young. And now that so much activity centres outside the home she must follow them.

One department in which women can be of untold service is in the bureau of lost people. In the scores of letters which came to me from all parts of the world, while I was in charge of this work, I learned that there are other crimes than those on the statute books. These are the crimes of the broken heart.

I never knew how great was the number of broken-hearted parents, deserted wives and children and anxious relatives, eager to get some word from a lost son, brother or sister who had gone from home in search of health or fortune, and from whom, for some unknown reason, the looked-for messages had ceased to come.

Women are especially fitted for this particular work, for a woman inherently sympathizes with the sorrow of the woman at the other end of the line and she spares no effort to locate the missing son or daughter and tie the broken thread.

Another class of women little thought about by the public find in the policewoman a valued friend and a source of strength—these are the abused wives who belong to harsh or intemperate husbands. This is, in the main, civil work, yet these women are entitled to any help which can be rendered them, and the policewoman can often cross that line of demarcation between civil and police work when her brother officers' sympathetic proffer of help would be resented or impugned.

Like the artist, the writer, the lawyer, the policewoman is born, not made. The policewoman must have adaptability. She must have the police instinct. She must be observant, she must have good judgment and a wholesome interest in humanity.

There is a great opportunity in police work for well educated, well reared young women who are practical and resourceful. This work opens up a new and large field for the college woman and presents great possibilities for helping to work out a better solution of our crime problem.

Public spirited officials of our cities are rapidly recognizing the value and necessity of the policewoman's work. Since my appointment, less than four years ago, more than fifteen cities have added women to their police departments.

I am satisfied that within the next five years every important city in this country will have appointed policewomen, and inquiries which have already reached me from foreign cities indicate its rapid international acceptance.
